Leigh and Birch, Long a Residential Neighborhood, Buffeted by Constant Winds of Change

In a neighborhood, sometimes, people will have a sense of helplessness against a monolothic institution, or a "they" that seem to be running their lives.

When something comes along they can have a say about, it's a kind of relief, even though what they actually end up saying, may be "Yes, it's OK."

That's the situation right now around Leigh and Birch avenues, a neighborhood that lies in both Borough and Township. The feared institution is the Medical Center. "They" are, quite naturally enough, the white community and ironically, the so-called liberal white community.

A Princeton-born, life-long Princeton resident, lawyer Joseph Stonaker, wants to buy the boarded up old Bovino Market building on the corner of Leigh and John, fix it up, and move his law office there.

The Bovino property extends from Leigh through to Birch, on the north. Mr. Stonaker plans to keep, as a rental housing unit, the sizeable house next door to the old market on Leigh, tear down a boarded-up, abandoned house in the rear, and keep the grassy corner plot with its big apple tree that's on the corner of John and Birch.

He has already talked with the Planning Board and will appear formally before the Township Zoning Board on Wednesday, October 26, at 8 p.m. in Township Hall.

He needs a use variance for an office in an R-9 residential zone. He could, if he wished, provide the required parking by paving over the grassy plot, but he would rather keep the plot open and green, and so he is asking a parking waiver.

To his considerable surprise, the Planning Board gave him an equivocal, lukewarm reception. It was unable to agree on a recommendation to the Zoning Board, either for or against, but will tell the Zoning Board to consider "important planning issues for the future of the area" in making its decision.

Mr. Stonaker, who is white, is the lawyer for the First Baptist Church. He is sometimes called "the Clarence Darrow of Princeton" because he so frequently represents working-class people.

"Why, I KNOW that neighborhood! I have clients there!" he exclaimed after his Planning Board appearance.

"I feel I can bring walk-in, neighborhood services. The Bovino building is an eyesore and should be renovated. The house has tenants now, and I want to do some renovation and fix it up without raising rents – I can do that, financially, if I have my office next door."

Mr. Stonaker says he would not enlarge the existing market building. It would provide office space for himself and two other lawyers, plus three secretaries.

"The boarded-up house in the back hasn't any plumbing – it's been abandoned and can't be lived in any more, and I would tear it down.

"Yes, I could provide parking on that back lot, but Birch is a nice residential area and I want to keep the grass and trees. Somebody on the Planning Board mentioned a neighborhood park, but residents have told me they don't want a park there."

Mr. Stonaker said he'd looked into Central Business District properties uptown. "I don't know how I could afford to buy there and still keep my fees reasonable and affordable," he commented.

He added that as attorney for Plainsboro Township Committee, the West Windsor Township Zoning Board and for Lawrence, Monroe and Washington Township planning boards, his bread-and-butter business is largely done over the telephone and at night meetings, with little drive-in trade.

He had heard, he said, that a group of doctors had been interested in the Bovino property, but found it too far from the hospital.

Among people who have homes in the area, Mr. Stonaker's proposal seems to have found generally

Township to Revalue All Property Next Year; Owners Will Not Feel Tax Impact Until 1980

If you live in Princeton Township, your property will be revalued next year, Committee unanimously decided last Wednesday night.

If revaluation changes your taxes, the change won't show until the 1980 tax year, which starts October 1, 1979. Revaluation itself will probably start this spring.

Stuart Robson, Township assessor, estimated that about one-third of the properties will have higher taxes, one-third will have lower taxes and the remaining third will stay the same.

The process Committee decided to follow is known as a modified revaluation. It means that an employee of the company hired by the Township will go through your house, room by room, but will not make any of the outside measurements that go with a full-scale revaluation. Every house in the Township will be subject to this inspection.

For the past several years, Mr. Robson has been patiently urging the Township -- and the Borough, whose assessor he also is -- to revalue or reassess in order to distribute the property-tax burden more equitably. Also, property values have zoomed so high since the Township last reassessed in 1971, that the value of a house on the real estate market is out of line with the taxes you actually pay.

True Value Formula. In Mercer County, where Princeton is, property must be assessed at 100 percent of true value. But the high costs of housing have skewed this so far out of line, Mr. Robson told Committee, that the Township's average ratio has dropped from the required 100 percent of true value, to 72.91 percent.

In the Borough, he said, it's even worse; the ratio has fallen to 50.7 percent.

In the Township, he said, the net valuation of taxable property is $273,956,845. But when it comes to sharing the cost of joint enterprises with the Borough, or figuring the amount of taxes the Township has to pay the county, it's the state's equalized value of $375,054,998 that must be used as the base.

"We used to think," Mr. Robson told Committee on Wednesday, "that for modest homes, like those on Birch Avenue, taxes would go up too much under revaluation, but that's not true in the Township. In the Borough, the burden could well be on the poorer home-owners, because the Borough has waited too long."

What Have You Done? The reason your house will be inspected is that the Township wants to catch things you did without a building permit, like turning your attic into a room, or building a patio. This kind of thing will bring more money into the Township tax coffers, but Mr. Robson doesn't think it's a huge sum.

"I can't guarantee you'll pick up enough in finished attics to pay the cost of revaluation," he observed to Committee.

The estimated cost is about $60,000, or $15 to $25 per "line item." A "line item" is a piece of property. The Township has around 4,000. The cost, incidentally, was $40,000 two years ago.

Maintenance, like painting the outside of your house or putting on a new roof, won't increase your taxes, Mr. Robson said. However, he does count new aluminum siding.

Sewer overflow or flooding, if your house is in the flood plain, could negatively affect your property about 35 percent, he said, thereby reducing your taxes – maybe.

He also said that vacant land without a sewer is worth about half as much as land that is sewered, "although this gap is narrowing." It doesn't seem to matter much whether your house has a septic tank or is connected to a sewer. Property with a septic tank is worth almost as much as one with a sewer, he said.

Half an Acre: $65,000. Commenting generally on property values, Mr. Robson told Committee that half-acre lots in the Township are now selling for $35,000 up to as high as $65,000. This is vacant land, before building, he emphasized.

In the last three months, he said, because of the cost of lumber, there has been a 28 percent increase in housing costs. Houses selling for $80,000 a year ago are now going for $112,000 to $120,000, he said.

Committee agreed to a request from Margaret Broadwater that tax notices informing property-owners of their new taxes not be sent out until after the 1979 elections, to keep revaluation from being caught in the political machinery.

Regarding revaluation itself, Committee seemed resigned.

"This is a necessary form of housekeeping," Dr. Broadwater said, without much enthusiasm. Mr. Robson agreed.

FLOOD CONTROL?

Snowden Area Alarmed. A lot of flood-water went through the culvert last Wednesday before Township Committee decided to confer with the Borough on the future of the Snowden Lane culvert.

Mercer County will build the culvert, but won't do any upstream or downstream work. The Borough will do everything but downstream work. The Township is talking about improving the downstream channel.

Residents on Wheatsheaf and Locust Lanes learned with some alarm that plans call for widening the channel from its present six feet to 20. More than one property-owner said trees would be undermined and would fall in heavy storms.

To a question from Committee member Margaret Broadwater, General William Whipple, chairman of the Township's Flood Control Committee, said the Borough had no plans other than the 20-foot width.

"County and state have culvert standards which are iniquitous, counter-productive and wrong," General Whipple declared. "The only thought is to keep the water from the road surface. There is complete disregard for erosion."

"I think the Borough has not had our flood experience and doesn't understand," observed Committee member Elizabeth Hutter.

Flooding Is Serious. General Whipple reminded Committee that Borough residents -- Mr. and Mrs. Leon Vieland, on the corner of Snowden and Hamilton -- have asked the Borough to buy their property for use as a park. They have been seriously flooded several times.

When Mrs. Hutter said, "I can't believe we're required to accept this 20-foot width," municipal attorney Gordon Griffin said that probably the Borough could not proceed without the Township.

A Borough resident, Rene Weber of 46 Snowden, wrote the Township of his opposition to widening the culvert, and suggested there must be other ways to solve flooding problems. Dr. Weber lives across Harry's Brook from the Vielands.

Dr. Heinz Heinemann, 52 Locust Lane, also wrote to Committee expressing his opposition and reminding Committee of the proposal to convert the Vieland land to a flood-plain park.

Future construction in the Borough is also a worry, General Whipple said, and could cause problems in the Township.

Approval Sought. "We should ask the Borough if they will go along with passing a flood-detention ordinance for future construction," he said. "Detention basins in urban areas are tricky, but not impossible."

Mayor Hall suggested that regulations under the so-called "208 water quality" act, may eventually require flood-detention measures by all municipalities.

"This whole problem is brand new," General Whipple observed, "and standard engineering technique doesn't serve the purpose. It's a problem facing many communities today."

Mayor Hall said she would ask the Township engineer to confer with the Borough engineer, and promised that representatives of both governing bodies would also talk together.

Wine Talk

PROPER TEMPERATURES FOR SERVING WINE

Red wines, with a few exceptions, such as Beaujolais or Lambrusco, are usually served at room temperature. This means 65-68 degrees as has been customary in Europe and is now becoming customary in the American home.

The wine should be opened a half hour to one hour before served. This breathing period will give the wine a chance to develop its bouquet and help smooth any roughness in the wine. However, if you prefer a red wine chilled, do so. It is your individual palate that determines what is pleasing and acceptable to you.

White wines and Roses taste better when served chilled (45-50 degrees), and this is best done by putting the bottle to be served in the refrigerator two (2) hours before being served, or if this is not feasible, by placing the bottle in a bucket of ice cubes and water (never use ice cubes alone) for twenty (20) or thirty (30) minutes. Champagne should be served at around 45 degrees. The sweeter a white wine, the colder it can be drunk. If you chill a white wine below 45 degrees you freeze the bouquet and lose one of the most important sensory pleasures associated with the enjoyment of wine.

Port, sweet Sherry, and Madeira taste best when served at room temperature. Dry Sherry tastes best chilled.

If two (2) wines are served, the lighter and dryer should come first. White comes before Red.

Leigh and Birch Avenues favorable response, although there is concern, chiefly from those who are worried about housing.

"There are few enough houses for the poor and the black; we're losing the area, piece-meal," said George Geary, 102 Birch. "I am very much against this proposal, and I can't see where it's any hardship for Mr. Stonaker. There are other places he can go to."

Apartments Preferred. Mrs. Geary said she knew of three families on Birch Avenue who must move because the landlord's children are moving in from Trenton, having been unable to afford housing there. In another case, she said, the owner of a house is returning to Princeton to live in it, and the tenant living there now must move.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Geary would like to see the Bovino property converted to apartments.

What most neighbors seem to fear most--and Planning Board members as well--is the domino effect.

"Suppose the hospital decides to buy up houses again, amd make offices?" asks Frank Wells, 36 Birch. "Our real fear is the hospital.

"But I feel the Stonaker plan could improve the appearance of the corner," he continues, "and I'm going around telling neighbors Stonaker isn't so bad. Why, they all know Joe, you know. How can you object to Joe?"

"I asked the Witherspoon-Jackson Corporation why they hadn't taken a position," Mr. Wells continued, referring to the non-profit group that is working to provide more housing in the black community. "They said that if Joe planned to tear down the abandoned house, another should be built, but that's just a crazy dream!"

Bar, Buses Gone. Mr. Wells, who with Michael Fuschini, 19 Birch, has been informing residents of the Stonaker project, says the area has improved greatly since a bar was closed down the street, and since Suburban Transit moved its buses out of the big garage that faces John.

"Those buses were awful!" Mr. Wells exclaimed, "Now that they're gone, I can hear the crickets and the birds!"

Almost uniformly, neighbors wont to keep the grass on the John-Birch corner and want to make sure it doesn't become a park.

One nearby neighbor, who asked not to be named, said "I don't see any harm in Mr. Stonaker's project; I think it would be nice for the community, but I wouldn't want parking, where there is grass. I would really have to think about that."

Her husband added that any parking area would be used by people who were not Mr. Stonaker's clients. Both were concerned about the loitering problem on that corner, and feared that it would be worse if there were a park. This couple has lived in the area in their own home since 1951.

Housing Is Vital. Next door to the old Bovino market and its tenanted house are Mr. and Mrs. Turner Stephens, who moved into their 37 Leigh Avenue home on Hallowe'en, 37 years ago.

"It would build up this part of town and upgrade the area," Mrs. Stephens said promptly of the Stonaker proposal. But housing is so scarce! I do wish he could put that old house in shape and not tear it down. I think neighbors feel as long as he keeps 39 Leigh Avenue as a rental, it's OK."

Mr. Stephens, active in First Baptist Church affairs, knows Mr. Stonaker and believes the project would improve the corner. So does a Birch Avenue neighbor, Van Leer Lacy.

On the Planning Board housing sub-committee chairman Golda Gottlieb, unavailingly urged the board to delay a statement.

"I thought the board should have thought more carefully. This is not just an ordinary case in terms of preserving the neighborhood as a residential area. Our major concern is to retain as much of the residential character as possible.

"Mr. Stonaker's proposal is not designed to serve the neighborhood; there is a difference between Neighborhood Business and office use. To serve the neighborhood is one thing, an office is another. I am really afraid of the domino effect and the precedent."

A "High Density" Zone. Although the area is in the Township's R-9 zone, the Bovino corner is shown as "commercial retail" on the 1968 Master Plan Land Use map. The portion of the property behind the actual market--incorporating the abandoned house and the grassy plot--is "high desnity residential."

Neighbors are also watching closely the planned acquisition by the Princeton Packet of a strip of land behind the old Suburban Transit garage, a strip belonging to the Township. The Packet building fronts on Witherspoon Street.

The neighborhood appears seamless, but the Borough-Township line goes down the middle of Leigh Avenue, and across the street from the Bovino Market corner, is a row of stores in the Borough's R-4 residence zone, where they are permitted uses. The Princeton Market is here, and the Koffee Kup and a laundromat.

Diagonally across from the Bovino property is the newly-renovated row belonging to the Craig family, with the NAACP office on the corner and Mr. Craig's "Fisherman" fish store. These are in the Borough also, although they are as much "in the neighborhood" as the Bovino property.

A Borough Zoning Board members, Albert Hinds, lives just a few feet away in the Borough at 227 John Street.

"Right now, I'd say the Stonaker proposal would be improvement," Mr. Hinds said. "I can really see more pluses than minuses: perhaps it would eliminate some of that loitering."

Vitality Welcome. Another Borough resident, Eugene McCray, who lives across the street from the Bovino property at 58 Leigh says:

"I tend to think any kind of business that wouldn't cause a disturbance and would add vitality to the neighborhood is a plus."

But long-range, what residents regard as the gradual erosion of housing, is the frightening thing.

"It's all so slow!" exclaims Mr. Wells. "Five years of talk from the Witherspoon-Jackson Corporation. How come they didn't get first preference on the nursing-home property the Borough is leasing for that Maclean Street parking lot? Was there some hanky-panky there? Was the University involved in some way? And that parking lot is hardly used."

Many residents--and at the risk of redundancy it must be said again that the area includes both Borough and Township--are unhappy about the new Haitian neighbors.

"They" are moving Haitians in here, is the way it is phrased, and residents say that white church groups are behind the influx. Long-time residents won't even know that an apartment or house is available, they say, and suddenly a Haitian family is moving in. "They" are defined as white liberals.

It is said that a white family planned to buy a house in the neighborhood for Haitians who work for them. The hospital comes in for a drubbing again when neighbors say that Haitian workers are "taking over" the hospital.

So far, there has been no formal neighborhood gathering, to discuss Mr. Stonaker's plans, only Mr. Wells and Mr. Fuschini talking with their neighbors as one home-owner mows his lawn, or a woman picks the last brilliant fall flowers from a doorstep garden.

Before the October 26 Zoning Board meeting, however, Mr. Wells says he may call the neighbors together.

Princeton Physicist Is Winner of Nobel Prize

Philip W. Anderson, 53, professor of physics at Princeton University, has won the Nobel Prize in physics.

The Swedish Royal Academy of Sciences announced Tuesday that Dr. Anderson and two other scientists were awarded the prize for "their fundamental theoretical investigations of the electronic structure of magnetic and disordered systems." The other two prize winners are John H. van Vleck, emeritus professor of physics at Harvard University, and Sir. Nevill F. Mott, Cavendish emeritus professor in physics at England's Cambridge University. The trio will share $145,000.

All three prize winners are theoreticians in solid state physics, a field which underlies much current technical development, particularly in electronics.

Upon receiving the prize, Dr. Anderson said van Vleck and Mott were the two people with whom he was most proud to be associated. Dr. van Vleck was Anderson's thesis adviser at Harvard, and the Princeton professor worked for many years with Mott at the Cavendish Laboratory.

Here for Two Years. Dr. Anderson joined the Princeton faculty in 1975, following eight years as a tenured visiting professor of theoretical physics at Cambridge University. He has a half-time appointment both at Princeton and at Bell Laboratories in Murray Hill, where he is consulting director of the physical research division. He currently teaches a graduate course at Princeton entitled "Introduction to Solid State Physics."

Dr. Anderson received his B.S. (1943) and Ph.D. (1949) degrees from Harvard University. He is probably best known for his contributions to a theoretical understanding of magnetic phenomena, superconductivity, and probability problems such as spectral line widths.

Library Parking Lot Is Felt Best Site For Proposed Borough Parking Garage

The library parking lot seems to be the best site for the Borough's first parking garage. That's the consensus of a lunch meeting last Friday with E. A. Barton, the Borough's parking garage consultant.

A five-story garage on that site, holding about 800 cars, would be 43 feet high. This isn't much taller than other buildings in the Borough, municipal officials felt, and Mayor Robert W. Cawley observed later that it isn't much different from a three-story library, if expansion plans for the library go through.

"The advantage of the library lot," the mayor says, "is that the biggest need is there. It's a central location; it will care for Princeton Community Housing parking needs, and improve the overall parking supply." The mayor was referring to proposals for 100 units of housing for the elderly east of the present Playhouse.

Other proposed sites are the Tulane Street lot across Spring from the library, the Park and Shop lot on Chambers and the Park Place lot.

"We must think of using the most land we possibly can for ground-level parking," Mayor Cawley says. "We must use all four sites to their fullest. How we decide which one to build next, is still to be discussed."

Stores to Be Kept. Mr. Barton and Borough officials want to keep the row of stores that start with Gale Cleaners on Witherspoon and go around the corner on Spring, ending with Rosso's cafe. If the garage extends out to Witherspoon, a row of stores on its ground floor might face Witherspoon Street, Mr. Barton has suggested.

Mr. Barton has been asked to return in a week or so with figures showing various combinations of all-day and short-term parking: 75 percent all-day, or 25 percent all-day, and so on.

"We must reserve enough easy-access parking for short-term needs," Mayor Cawley has warned, "that's where the mall competition is. If we blow that, we've had it."

Homework to Be Done. While Mr. Barton is doing his home-work, Borough staff will be doing theirs. They will double-check the proposed parking fee schedule along with analyses of costs and expenses. They will also study operation and staffing of the garage, and examine financing options.

Nobody wants a "parking authority." Any garages will be Borough-owned and Borough-operated. Mayor Cawley likes the idea of an advisory board, and a separate set of books for the operation.

It's possible that garage financing may be through the general oblation route because it's cheapest, the mayor says. It is possible, he believes, that the state would be willing to remove the operation from the Borough's debt limit because the garage would be self-sustaining.

The mayor asked Mr. Barton whether aesthetics had been included in cost estimates and he said they had. The garage would not be "bare and cheap-looking," the mayor promised.

Actually, Council has not decided officially whether it wants a garage, but the mayor said this week,

"It's obvious to me you can't to ANY development -- of housing, or the University or whatever -- without it."

LONGER BIKE PATH

North from Community Park. Walkers in the new Community Park North find an abruptly ending bike path in the eastern portion. There seems to be money enough to continue it north, to exit on Cherry Hill Road, and Township Committee voted 4-0 last Wednesday to make the extension.

It can be done for under $15,600, according to Abbot Low Moffat, who has worked on most Township bike path plans. Bids will go out in January. In the vote, Mayor Josie Hall abstained, saying, "I'm just not sure."

This Wednesday, at its regular 8 p.m. meeting, Committee will hear about another bike path. Housing Authority director Karin Slaby says the Authority doesn't want to construct a path along Ewing to Route 206 next to the Yedlin public housing project, now under construction.

Construction of the path was a condition of Planning Board approval for the project, confirmed at the time by Committee. But Mrs. Slaby says trees would have to go, and proposes saving them for screening purposes. Also, she points out, in a letter to Committee, the path doesn't connect to anything on Route 206.

Committee will hold public hearing on the ordinance amending alternate side of the street parking regulations on Birch Avenue to include Martin Luther King's birthday, and will discuss a proposed landmarks ordinance.

In other action last Wednesday, Committee asked Mayor Hall, Committee member Margaret Broadwater and William Starr, Township representative on the Stony Brook Regional Sewerage Authority, to draft a policy on allocating the Township's share of gallonage in the Montgomery-Rocky Hill-Princeton Township sewer system.

A meeting on the future of Route 206 may be held October 26 with Borough Mayor Robert W. Cawley and Montgomery Township officials, Mayor Hall reported.

"We want the 92-A by-pass moved from the back burner," she remarked.

As the midnight meeting drew to a close, Carl Pope from the audience, complimented Committee members of both parties for dedication and late hours. He noted a one a.m. meeting of last month as well as the current meeting, and commented that only he and reporters were present.

"It's democracy," he said, "and nobody wants to get involved late at night."

BEATEN, ROBBED, RAPED

Police Press Investigation. A middle-aged Township resident was beaten, robbed and raped last week by an assailant who entered her apartment in Princeton Community Village while she was asleep. The victim, who sustained bruises and contusions, was treated at Princeton Medical Center and later released.

According to police, the victim was asleep and awakened around 4 Sunday morning with her assailant standing over her. He had entered her apartment by forcing a large, rear sliding glass door.

The assailant, police said, then "assaulted and battered the victim, tied her up and raped her." He continued to threaten her. Then he removed all the cash from her wallet and left.

The initial investigation by Ptl. Jerry Offredo is being continued by Township Detectives Norman Servis and Frank Boccanfuso, together with Gail Meszaros, special assistant with the rape force associated with the Mercer County Prosecutor's Office in Trenton.

Jogger Molested. Borough police are searching for a man who molested a 19-year old jogger while she was running Monday morning on Nassau Street near Pine.

Chief Michael Carnevale reported that a man had called her to ask the time. When the victim stopped, he molested her and ran off. The 9:08 incident was investigated by Sgt. Thomas Procaccino.

One more Sunday,
Damp and dark.

No one can recall when we last had a whole weekend without rain. Odds are, the Man says, that the next one will be wet, too. Showers Saturday are in the forecast, and if they are late—as they were last week—they could spill over into Sunday again.

Rain was also expected at midweek, with Thursday and Friday just possibly both dry. Temperatures will remain fairly well below normal, all of which is annoyingly contrary to the original 30-day forecast for October.

Hospital's Plans to Solve Parking Problem Make Shortage Worse Before It'll Be Over

Where are you going to park while you're building a place where people can park?

The Medical Center, faced with this dilemma when it starts construction of its new parking garage November 1, has turned to Princeton Township to see if it can borrow a few spaces for a while Spaces are needed for the estimated eight months it will take to build the garage.

Township Committee last Wednesday didn't exactly slam the door in the supplicant's face, but it didn't open it wide, either.

"We can't give the hospital what it wants," said Mayor Josie Hall curtly at the end of the discussion, "and we should tell the hospital we may pass an ordinance limiting parking on residential streets. We will enforce what parking we do give them."

During construction, the Medical Center plans to open the employees' lot on Franklin to the public. Employees will have to park "elsewhere." The hospital hopes that "elsewhere" can be 60 spaces near the tennis courts off John Street; 120 at the Community Park pool and 60 in the old garage lot off John Street, now owned by the Township.

According to Borough Administrator Robert F. Mooney, the Medical Center has not approached the Borough about possible use of the Maclean Street lot, which also has a Witherspoon entrance.

All five Committee members expressed the view that the Medical Center itself should do more to encourage employee carpooling. Member Elizabeth Hutter suggested the hospital find itself a jitney and transport employees on a five-minute bus ride from the Princeton Shopping Center parking lots.

Mrs. Hutter reported a request by a Medical Center spokesman that the Township not control parking on residential streets around the hospital. "....or we'll be in trouble," he reportedly said.

Recreation Director Donald Barr told Committee he could spare enough spaces to give the hospital 56 of the 60 tennis court spots it wants and 76 of the 120 pool spaces it seeks for a total of 132. The hospital's original request totalled 240.

"We can't spare any at the garage lot," Mayor Hall said firmly. The Princeton Packet hopes to acquire 50 feet of that land.

She also said any pool-side parking would have to move "elsewhere" when the pool re-opens at the end of May. Both tennis and pool sites, she pointed out, are used year 'round by people playing paddle tennis, and players using the regular tennis courts in good weather.

front of Woolworth's on Nassau Street. Police said a chain securing the moped had been cut.

Another moped, unlocked, was stolen last week from the grounds of Princeton High School but the $440 motorized bicycle was recovered the same day in the area of Harris and Valley roads.

A bike doesn't have to be expensive to be stolen. A Princeton mother told police last week that her son's "old and battered" 3-speed bicycle had been stolen from the rack at the Public Library. It was valued at $10.

In office thefts, an IBM electric typewriter, worth $725 was stolen last week from Princeton Day School, and two recorders and 17 cassette tapes containing foreign language lessons were removed from an office at Palmer Physics Laboratory, a Princeton University building off Washington Road. The latter items were valued at $220.40.

There were two purse thefts in the Borough. A Rocky Hill resident lost $21 and credit cards when a youth grabbed her purse which she had left in her car parked on Nassau between Chestnut and Pine.

She told police she saw a youth 16 to 17, 5-10, with medium long blond hair, wearing a red sweat shirt, run from her car and down an alley toward the firehouse on Chestnut Street.

A Township resident reported losing $7 and credit cards when her purse was stolen at the Coin Wash, at the rear of 259 Nassau Street.

Early in the week, someone pried open a rear door at Pete & Mike's Mobil station on Bayard Lane and stole $2. Nothing else was taken, according to Sgt. Michael Kopliner, who investigated.

PAINT STORE ENTERED

Pharmacy, Too. There was a break-in at the Morris Maple paint store at 200 Nassau Street Tuesday morning and at Forer's Pharmacy two hours earlier.

Police, responding to a 7:43 alarm, discovered that the paint store had been entered through a basement window. The office was ransacked and $50 taken from a cash register that was pried open. An inventory was conducted to determine if anything else was missing.

Detectives Robert McAvenia and Ronald Holiday are continuing the initial investigation by Ptl. Monica Sheehan.

Earlier, at 5:12 in the morning, a passing motorist told Ptl. John Holcombe on car patrol that an alarm was

Children's Museum, 'Re-Opening' Sunday, Hopes the Sun Will Smile for a Change

Hop aboard! In case you're too young to know, it's a surrey. If you're middle-aged, you'll ask about the fringe on top.

The surrey belongs to Donald W. Griffin (top picture) who is graciously lending it to the "Re-opening" of the Children's Museum of the Historical Society of Princeton, this Sunday from 3-5 at Bainbridge House. Again.

"Re-opening" and "again" because of all that rain last Sunday. It was a mob scene inside Bainbridge House, where kids rode the antique rocking horse, tried on the old clothes and had a perfectly splendid time.

But they were supposed to be outdoors, too, and that's where they'll be if the weather is co-operative this Sunday. On the Bainbridge sidewalk, there'll be marble games, jump rope, and hopscotch.

You can dip pieces of apple into caramel--which they did in farm kitchens long ago. Mimes will entertain you. ("What's a 'mime'"? Stop around Sunday and you'll see.)

And the surrey, which really will be hitched to a horse and really will take kids for rides along Vandeventer while they wait a turn to go inside and ride the rocking horse. (You can see a surrey in more detail in the bottom picture.)

The Children's Museum will be open every week-end, on a schedule to be announced. But this Sunday, it's 3-5.

If it rains, the whole thing is cancelled. That's the word from Anne Reeves and Connie Escher, who thought it all up and are running the show.

sounding at the Farer Pharmacy, 160 Witherspoon Street.

An investigation revealed that an entry had been gained through the roof. Approximately $50 in cash was taken. Det. Holiday and Capt. Theodore Lewis are investigating.

Still earlier at 1:29 police investigated an alarm at the Wine & Game Shop, 6 Nassau Street, which sounded when a rear window was broken. There was no entry.

Chief Michael Carnevale said police did not know if it was an actual break-in attempt or just an act of vandalism to activate the alarm.

TRENTON MAN CHARGED

In Clothing Theft. A Trenton man has been charged with the larceny of $428 in clothing from The Nickel, 354 Nassau Street.

Allen W. Mitchell, 21, was arrested in Trenton last week in a state car bearing a N.J. State Seal. Inside were five Bolivian sweaters, three jackets and six Swiss Army shirts allegedly stolen last Wednesday from the Nickel.

Mitchell has been charged with larceny by Borough Det. Ronald Holiday and with possession of stolen property by Trenton police. Chief Michael Carnevale reported that a second suspect is involved but has not been arrested.

Chief Carnevale added that the Nickel was in the process of restocking and was not aware of the theft until notified by Trenton police.

POLITICS

Township Republicans. Tom Haber and Bill Cherry, Republican candidates for Princeton Township Committee, have criticized their opponents for implying in advertisements that local property taxes are rising and that the Township Committee is responsible.

"This year, Township Committee took such a hard look and prepared such a bare bones budget, that the local tax rate dropped seven points from 1976 to 1977," Mr. Cherry said.

"This is the first time the municipal rate has dropped since 1969," Mr. Haber added. "And this is remarkable when you consider that fixed municipal expenditures are rising at an alarming rate ... insurance costs alone were up 36.5 percent this year."

"Perhaps our opponents should address themselves to rising Mercer County taxes," the candidates continued. "Only 17 percent of the Township tax dollar goes to local government while the county takes 31 percent. Princeton Township is paying $193,153 more in 1977 to the county--controlled totally by Democrats--than it paid in 1976."

PARKING?

In West Windsor. The West Windsor Parking Authority would like to acquire five acres of land on Wallace Road to build some 460 to 563 parking spaces. West Windsor Township Committee decided last week to condemn the land, which belongs to Frank Crawford, to achieve this goal.

But Mr. Crawford warned that he may well sue. He himself wanted to operate a parking lot on the land, but was turned down last spring by the zoning board and took the rejection to Superior Court. The land is in a residential zone, and the zoning board decided Mr. Crawford had not shown "special reasons" why he should build the lot.

Last Thursday, the West Windsor Zoning Board began hearings on the proposal of William L. Bamberger to build a $35-million complex straddling the railroad tracks, and providing shops and a convention center with around 1,900 parking spaces. There would be a six-story parking garage.

The developer needs 17 zoning variances. It is expected that the West Windsor board will spend several months considering the proposals.

Medical Center Drive for $4 Million Topped; R.W. Johnson Foundation Gives $1.5 Million

The Medical Center at Princeton has successfully completed its Capital Campaign Program by exceeding its $4,000,000 goals. Pledges and gifts received total $4,379,025.

Officially launched in September of 1976, with pledges of $600,000 from members of the Medical and Dental Staff; $500,000 from the Auxiliary; and $200,000 from the Board of Trustees, the program was presented to individuals in the community by a committee of volunteers who gave many hours of their time to assist the Medical Center in achieving its objective.

Eugene P. Gillespie, General Chairman, praised the volunteers for their efforts and commented, "The general outpouring of support from the community has been outstanding. Without their efforts and good will, we would never have succeeded. All thanks go to them."

The fund drive brought the largest single gift -- $750,000 -- in the 58-year history of the Hospital, from the Robert Wood Johnson Jr. 1962 Charitable Trust; and in recognition of the response from the Medical and Dental Staff and the community, the trust doubled the size of its grant to $1.5 million. Mr. Gillespie also reported that the family of Curtis W. McGraw contributed more than half a million dollars in his memory, and that 20 national corporations and institutions gave nearly $500,000 to the Medical Center Building Fund. With the successful conclusion of the campaign, and the $9,020,000 bond issue which received an A-1 rating from Moody's and an A+ rating from Standard and Poor's, the Medical Center has totally financed the improvement program and assured its continued strong financial position.

Additions Are Numerous. Improvements to the Medical Center's Princeton Hospital Unit will add three additional floors on its J-Building. These will include a new surgical floor with eight operating rooms and an adjacent 12-bed recovery room; a new maternity floor with four labor rooms, two large delivery rooms, four nurseries equipped with 24 bassinets, and 24 patient beds with the latest in technical equipment.

The top floor will contain a nine-bed intensive care unit, six-bed coronary care unit and a 20-bed intermediate care unit which will replace beds lost in the renovation of the old wing.

At Merwick a third floor has been added, enlarging the Medical Center's extended care and rehabilitation unit. The work was completed in the middle of the summer and has been in full operation since that time.

The Medical Center has awarded a contract to S.T. Peterson & Company of Princeton to build a parking garage facing Henry Avenue, immediately adjacent to the main hospital. This facility, which has been approved by the zoning and planning boards of the Borough and Township, will provide parking space for 395 automobiles. It is expected to be completed late next spring.

MEET DEMOCRATS

At Borough Fund-Raiser. Council candidates Nelson van den Blink and Leona Medvin, running on the Democratic ticket, will be guests at a cocktail buffet fund-raiser this Saturday from 5:30 to 7:30 at the home of Mercer County Freeholder Barbara Sigmund and her husband, Paul. The Sigmunds live at 8 Evelyn Place.

Tickets for the buffet, at $7.50 per person, will be available at the door.

Biking The Great Road?

If you're taking your 10-speed (or 3-speed or no-speed) along The Great Road, you must use the bike path or get a traffic ticket from Township police.

Chief Fred Porter pointed this week to chapter and verse of the New Jersey State Motor Vehicle Code. Translated, it says that if there is a bike path next to a road, you must use the path and not the road, OR ELSE.

He adds, "Remember that bicyclists are subject to the same traffic laws as the automobile driver."

"YES" TO ANTENNA

Cawley Breaks Tie. By a 3-3 vote, the tie broken by an affirmative from Mayor Robert W. Cawley, Borough Council decided at its agenda session last Thursday that the Township may move its police radio tower to the spot behind Borough Hall where the Borough's own radio tower stands.

The matter must now be considered by the Borough Zoning Board because the tower will need a conditional use permit and a variance from the 50-foot height limitation.

Township Committee, at this Wednesday's regular meeting, will introduce an ordinance to acquire the $41,000 worth of Ultra High Frequency police communication equipment. The cost includes the new base station, which will be at Borough Hall and will he shared with the Borough, all-new radio equipment for Township police including walkie-talkies, and the cost of moving the antenna.

The Township's police radio consultant advised that the additional 80 feet of altitude at Borough Hall was required for efficient functioning of the new equipment.

The Township must have its new equipment in operation by February to take advantage of the frequency set aside for Township use by the FCC.

Thursday's Borough Council vote followed a series of parliamentary actions. Council member Gus Escher proposed an amendment requiring the Township to see whether its new equipment would work on the present Borough tower, and proposing the Borough hire its own consultant. It was adopted, 3-2, Leona Medvin abstaining.

The amended proposal as a whole was then defeated, 3-3, Mayor Cawley casting a tie-breaking "no." Councilman William Selden then introduced the measure again, without the amendment. It was a 3-3 vote again, and this time, Mayor Cawley cast the "yes" vote.

Those voting in favor of granting permission to the Township were Richard Woodbridge, Mrs. Medvin and Mr. Selden. Opposed were Nelson van den Blink, Martin P. Lombardo and Mr. Escher.

EIGHT ARE FINED

In Borough Court. Eight Princeton area residents were fined Monday in Borough traffic court.

Fined for speeding were David P. Krolik, 66 Allison Drive, $18; Donna M. Reese, 549 The Great Road, $17; David Crawford, 231 Riverside Drive, $35; and Pamela Berry, 80 Jefferson Road, $26. Samuel F. Bianco Jr., 66 Tee Ar Place, paid $25 for careless driving.

Alan Glueck, 86 Greenway Terrace, pleaded not guilty to a red light violation and plans to appeal a $30 fine after being found guilty. For failing to have their cars inspected on time, Gerald McMahon, 4 Laurel Avenue, Kingston, and David J. Wiedes, 17 Taylor Road, were fined $15 and $10 respectively.

In Township Court last week, acting Judge Thomas Doig of East Windsor fined Robert H. Robinson, 10 Montgomery Avenue, Rocky Hill, $15 as an unlicensed driver and $15 for operating an unregistered vehicle. Joseph P. McGuinn, 23 Shadybrook Lane, paid $35 for careless driving, and Robert Steinfeld, 1043 Stuart Road, $20 for passing a stopped school bus.

SAFETY STRESSED

In Course for Hunters. The annual hunter safety course for all those 10 and older who wish to obtain their initial license will be held October 15, 21-22 at the Citizens Rifle and Revolver Club on the Princeton-Highstown Road.

Successful participants in the course, sponsored by the Princeton Patrolmen's Benevolent Associaiton under the direction of Ptl. William R. Potts, will be awarded the state certificate required for the purchase of a firearms hunting license.

Orren Wenzel and Ptl. Potts are the course instructors. Both are members of the Mercer County safety instructors association. Basic firearm fundamentals, safe hunting practices and hunting laws will be stressed in classes.

The first class on Saturday meets from 8 to 12 noon; next Friday the hours are from 7 to 9 p.m. and next Saturday from 8 to 12 noon.

Applications are available at Township police headquarters, Route 206 and Valley Road. Enrollment is limited on a first come, first served basis and more information may be obtained from either Borough or Township headquarters.

received the Dannie N. Heineman Prize from the Gottingen Academy of Science for his work dealing with an electron's ability to hop from site to site in a crystal — a phenomenon which has come to be known as "Anderson localization."

This work led to the concept known as "mobility edge" — the minimum value of energy to which an electron must be excited in order for it to be capable of moving large distances in a material. This concept is now being widely used in attempts to understand such phenomena as photoconductivity and how conductivity varies with temperature.

Taught in Tokyo. In 1953-54 Anderson held a Fulbright lectureship in physics at Tokyo University and in 1961-62 he lectured at the Cavendish Laboratory and was an Overseas Fellow at Churchill College, Cambridge University.

He is a fellow of the American Physical Society and the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, and is a member of the National Academy of Sciences, the Physical Society of Japan, Phi Beta Kappa and Sigma Xi. In 1964 he was awarded the Oliver E. Buckley Prize of the American Physical Society.

Among Dr. Anderson's hobbies are tennis, hiking, and the game of "Go." His favorite hiking area is Cornwall, England, where he spends a month each year.

NEW FIRE TRUCK

Price Is Incendiary. With a wan smile over the cost Borough Council on Tuesday night authorized its attorney to draw up an ordinance allowing purchase of a $75,000 pumper for the fire companies. It will replace Hook & Ladder's oldest vehicle.

A resolution formally setting up a Joint (Borough-Township) Fire Commission was unanimously passed. Members will be three appointees each from the Borough and Township, the two municipal fire commissioners, two members of the Board of Engineers that runs the fire companies, and the Fire Chief. The Township has already acted.

With high praise for her 36 years of service to five Borough engineers, Council lauded Jean B. Taub, who will retire from the engineering department in November. She has worked for the Borough since her student days at Princeton High School, reported Council member William Selden.

Zoning, planning and land-use fees will rise sharply under an ordinance introduced Tuesday night. For example, $10 and $15 costs related to zoning applications will now be $25 and $30.

Former $10 and $25 fees for site plan review will now be $50 and $100. George Olexa, Borough engineer, said fees will help cover high administrative costs the Borough faces in processing these applications.

Council voted to transfer the Lytle Street OK Bar liquor license belonging to Paul Harvey, to Marvin Trotman, who plans to run the bar as "Marv's."

Council member Martin P. Lombardo suggested the Intergovernmental Drug Abuse Committee be asked to examine the problem of youthful drinkers attempting to buy liquor in local stores.

MAN IS CHARGED

With Car Thefts Here. John T. Glenn, 35, who gave police a Philadelphia address, has been charged with the theft of two cars stolen in Princeton.

When arrested Thursday in Philadelphia, Glenn was in possession of a 1970 station wagon stolen two days earlier from the driveway of Leroy E. Purvis, 207 Russell Road. He was also allegedly in possession of items taken from a car reported stolen last Tuesday morning from the garage of Robert A. Nelson, 140 Hun Road.

The Nelson car, a 1973 sedan, was recovered less than three hours later in front of 256 Russell Road. A CB radio and two tool boxes had been removed from the car.

An escapee from a North Carolina state prison, Glenn is being held in a Philadelphia jail in lieu of $100,000 bail. There is a $25,000 bail charge by Township police, who have a detainer for his arrest.

Specifically, Glenn has been charged by Township police with larceny of the Purvis car, larceny of the Nelson car and possession of stolen property, and larceny of a Nelson Glass Company credit card.

At the same time the cars were being stolen, Township police received other reports of thefts in the area.

Paulina Wilker, 291 Russell Road, reported that a stereo cassette tape player valued at $100 had been stolen from her car parked in her driveway; William P. Burks, 231 Russell Road, listed a CB radio taken from his unlocked car; and Faith Ziesing, 80 Edgerstoune, told police that a golf bag, clubs and umbrella had been taken from her garage. They were valued at $473.

It's the pre-school stories that start next week. At 1:30 p.m., eschewing a nap for that day, children ages three-and-a-half to five can sit on the big red rug in the Meeting Room upstairs, and hear stories and see a filmstrip. It's a half-hour program, so maybe you get that nap, after all.

Parents are invited to register their children for the series at the Children's Desk.

Films for young children will start the next day--Wednesday, October 19. Show time is 3:30 p.m., and movies will continue through December on alternate Wednesdays. No tickets are required. The program:

October 19: "Where the Wild Things Are" and "Chick, Chick, Chick"; November 2: "Simba in a Wimba" and "Nature's Strangest Creatures"; November 16: "Anatole" and "Zoo"; November 30: "The Red Balloon"; December 14, "Pigs," "Shout It out Alphabet."

Nursery schools and day-care centers are invited to three special 10:30 a.m. showings on November 2, 30 and December 14.

Five live dogs will be available for petting during a family program called "It's a Dog's Life: You You and Your Pet" next Wednesday, October 19 at 7:30 p.m. Dr. Jack Blumenthal, Princeton veterinarian, will describe what goes on in an animal hospital, and the owners of the dogs will answer any questions.

Starting Friday, October 21, the library will start a new series--"Finally It's Friday." Children ages 6 to 12 may spend Friday afternoons at the library from 3:30 p.m., enjoying stories, films or discussions about books. Things will get under way on October 21 with a film, "Ghosts and Ghoulies."

TECHNIQUES ARE FOCUS

Of Day For Women. The YWCA will present "A Day For Women: Group Management Techniques" on Saturday, October 22, from 9 to 2:30. The day-long workshops are especially designed for leaders and members of groups in business or volunteer situations.

"Our aim is to cover the wide variety of techniques used in business today to identify and solve the problems which occur in group situations," says Margaret Smith, chairman of the YWCA adult program committee responsible for planning the workshops. The concept for the day is an outgrowth of the committee's goal to offer skills training programs for women.

Using puzzles to teach the discovery process and develop problem solving strategies is the system devised by Sidney Rubenstein, the founder of Participative Systems, Inc. During his "Participative Problem Solving" workshop, he will show how to apply this system to concrete problems. "Management by Objectives," a goal setting and planning process used by many firms, will be described by Tod White, president of Blessing-White, a Princeton-based management consulting firm.

The Kepnor-Tregoe method, a specific rational process of problem solving and decision making will be presented in "Effective Decision Making" by Larry Farrell, Kepnor-Tregoe Vice-President of North America and a former K-T director of marketing. Understanding the dynamics of groups and developing a group feeling will be discussed by Joyce McLaine and Camille Mraz in "What Makes a Group Tick."

"Constructive Conflict" is the subject of a workshop by Robert Gittleman, president of Exec-U-Service Associates. This workshop seeks to understand the causes of friction within and between groups and how to handle them. It does not deal with one-to-one conflict situations and ideally should be attended by registrants with one or more of their co-workers.

Carol Brandt, assistant minister of the United Methodist Church, will consider "Person Power: Utilizing Your Resources Within a Group." This workshop describes ways to find the most personally satisfying jobs, how to say "no" with conviction, and how to win support for your ideas.

Having a clear purpose, developing an agenda and controlling discussion are all necessary leadership skills and Sarene Byrne, a trainer in Group Dynamics, co-chairman of the 1977 Hospital Fete Auction and vice president of the Junior League, will offer valuable tips in "All You Ever Wanted To Know About Running a Meeting." The key to successful interpersonal communication will be explored by Dr. William J. Beeners, professor of speech at Princeton Theological Seminary and nationwide lecturer for business and educational groups, in a workshop titled, "Communications-Spoken and Unspoken."

Those who would like to experience the various aspects of power struggles may play the game, "Star Power," which allows the participants to win or lose in the struggle for ultimate power. Registration for the day must be completed by

Income Tax Remains Unpopular in New Jersey But Majority Prefer It to Increase in Sales Tax

Although a majority of New Jerseyans want the present income tax to self-destruct next June, most now doubt the state can get along "just as well" without the income tax or a replacement. If forced to choose among alternative taxes, most prefer the income tax over a sales boost.

The latest statewide Eagleton Poll finds that, by a 57 percent to 36 percent margin, New Jerseyans disagree with the statement that the state "could get along just as well without the state income tax and without any other tax to take its place." Seven percent are undecided.

These latest findings represent a sharp reversal from an April, 1977, survey when a majority--55 percent--agreed the state could get along just as well, while only 38 percent disagreed. The opinion shift since April is consistent across almost all political and social groupings.

The survey also finds that Garden State residents continue to prefer the present income tax program over a one-cent hike in the sales tax. Choosing between the income tax, with homestead rebates, or an increase in the sales tax to 6 percent, without rebates, the income tax is favored by a lopsided 60 percent to 35 percent margin.

Both Sides Favor Tax. A majority of supporters of Republican challenger Raymond Bateman and Governor Brendan Byrne agree that some tax is necessary, but disagree on the tax option preferred. Among registered voters, Bateman backers indicate a tax is needed, by a 51 percent to 44 percent margin. Byrne supporters see the need for a tax by a 71 percent to 23 percent margin.

However, Bateman supporters favor a sales tax increase over the income tax, 53 percent to 41 percent, while Bryne supporters overwhelmingly favor the income tax, 77 percent to 20 percent. Undecided voters strongly favor the income tax over a sales tax boost, 58 percent to 30 percent.

Poll analyst Mark Schulman cautioned, however, that, "While many New Jerseyans now appear to be reconciled to the necessity of a tax, they remain ambivalent about the present income tax." A majority--51 percent--still want the tax to self-destruct next year, while only 35 percent favor renewing it.

One reason for resistance to the income tax is that New Jerseyans have mixed feelings about the income tax's impact on local taxes and on their own tax bills. Fewer than one-in-four respondents--24 percent--feel local property taxes in their communities have gone down since the income tax was enacted, 28 percent say property taxes have remained the same, while 39 percent say property tax bills have risen. Homeowners are only slightly more likely than renters to feel property taxes have declined this year. Thirty-one percent of homeowners say local taxes are down, 29 percent say they remained the same, while 37 percent feel property taxes are up since enactment.

MAN WITH A GOLDEN EYE: Ptl. James Vandermark, flanked by Mayor Josia Hall and Lt. Michael Lisi, brought recognition for himself and the Township when he won four awards at the 1977 National Police Combat Pistol Championship held in Jackson, Miss. Story this page.

19 FROM PERFECTION

For Ptl. Vandermark. No one has ever shot a perfect 1500 in the annual National Police Combat Pistol Championships held this month at Jackson, Miss.

But in his first try, Township Ptl. James Vandermark came within 19 points. Competing against 194 others in the municipal category of the master class, the highest possible classification, Ptl. Vandermark won awards in four of six matches and accumulated 1481 points. "I'm very happy with that," said Ptl. Vandermark, who added it was his best mark ever.

Winner of the four-day event, which attracted 900 law enforcement officers from 40 states and three Canadian provinces, was Alabama Trooper Jim Collins with a 1496. He is the defending national champion and holds the all-time mark of 1498.

Ptl. Vandermark finished 9th overall among the 194 in his class. "These are the top shooters in the country, the cream of the crop," he said.

Ptl. Vandermark had to fire 150 rounds in various positions (prone, kneeling, sitting, standing, right hand, left hand) in distances from 7 to 50 yards, all timed events, with a .38 caliber pistol. In this type of competition, he commented, there is a silhouette target with a much smaller 10-ring.

In 1970, in preparation for becoming a patrolman, Vandermark shot the first perfect score ever in the practical pistol course at the Police Training Academy in Sea Girt. Before then, Vandermark, who grew up in the country and whose only experience with guns had been in plinking, had had no formal competition. "It just kind of came naturally to me," he said, "and I pursued it from there."

Tax Bills Higher. There is greater agreement among New Jerseyans that their total state and local tax bills have increased since the income tax was passed. A large majority--59 percent--say their own tax bill is up, while 25 percent say it is the same, and only 9 percent say it is down since enactment.

New Jerseyans also continue to doubt they get their money's worth from state government. Almost three out of four respondents–74 percent–say they receive less than a dollar's worth of state services for each tax dollar collected, while only 16 percent say they receive a dollar's worth, and a scant 4 percent say they receive more than a dollar's worth.

Assessing the overall political implications of the findings, Schulman outlined potential problems for both frontrunner Bateman and incumbent Byrne. "Byrne is still viewed as the architect of an unpopular income tax that many New Jerseyans would like to see self-destruct next year," Schulman said.

"Bateman's problem is that the abrupt reversal of public attitudes toward the necessity of a tax has shifted the burden of proof to Bateman to demonstrate convincingly that some tax is not needed. Most now assume a tax is needed--unless convinced otherwise."

Sales Tax Increase Opposed. Further, Schulman noted that if the tax issue evolves into a showdown between the income tax versus a sales tax increase, Byrne could benefit. "Among essentially unwelcome options, the income tax appears more palatable than a 6 percent sales tax."

Bateman said he would raise the sales tax to 6 percent if state spending cuts, economic recovery, and existing surpluses still result in a tax revenue shortfall.

QUALITY MATCHES PRICE

At the Workbench. Contemporary furniture at the Workbench has a universal appeal. It has good design and sturdy construction at a reasonable price. Young couples starting a home, expanding families with young children, older people seeking comfort and value, all will find furniture for every room, every need.

Workbench furnitre is selected from the best designs in Europe and America to meet exacting standards. Clean of line and unobtrusive, with easy-care natural wood finishes, it has a classic quality that spans the years.

Stacking, Folding Furniture saves space. A very good-looking Danish folding chair has a natural beech frame and brown canvas back and seat. $35. It has a matching stool ($17.50) and a small slat-top table, both foldable ($25). All are good starting pieces for living room or bedroom.

Low-backed folding chairs from Yugoslavia are made in five colors. $17.50 each. With cane seat, $30.

Shelving Systems are good space organizers in living room, bedroom, family room and kitchen. You can hide things away in closed units, display them in open units.

One of the most versatile is the Palaset, from Finland, which is based on a 13½" polystryene cube. These cubes have doors ($30), drawers ($47-$49), partitions ($23-$27), shelves ($23), or are open ($21). Basically white, but drawer cubes are also yellow or brown.

Bedrooms. The platform bed is a steady seller at the Workbench. It is like a large, shallow tray set on legs or a plinth base. The mattress is firm polyurethane foam. Made in Vermont in standard sizes, and oak, walnut or teak finishes.

The twin size with headboard is $250 complete. Matching chests, night tables, wardrobes are $120-$550.

Children's bedrooms have substantially-built furniture that will last from child to grandchild. Single or bunk beds have ladder headboards. One model has storage drawers.

Trundle beds in two styles are space-saving and fun; in natural wood finishes and white lacquer. Bunk beds $370-$500 set of two; trundle beds $225-$250. Mattress $50.

A small solid oak table and two chairs will endure many sessions of hard play. Table $30. Each chair $25. (Are you listening, Santa?)

Dining Rooms. Attractive and practical butcher block tables are a strong item at the Workbench. The butcher block is made from cured hard rock maple with a hand-rubbed oil finish that resists stains and wipes clean. Round, square or rectangular tops in many sizes can be matched to chrome or wood pedestals or trestles. Price: tops $60-$185; bases $70-$100.

Handsome teak veneer tables extend themselves in many ways. Some have leaves that can be added, or hidden heaves that slide out, or drop leaves that raise up. $175-$300, in an oil finish that resists stains and water rings.

An attractive pine gateleg table, imported from Poland, saves space, too. Two drop leaves fold down so table can be stored in space 6" deep. $115. Small "Napoleon chairs" with low backs and rush seats are compatible seat mates, $65 each.

You'll find many chairs to complement your choice of table. Especially worthy of your consideration are the classic Windsor chairs in solid oak.

Their hoop backs are graceful and they have a dignity and presence that makes them adaptable to every room. Side chair, $80. Arm chair, $100.

Hard-to-find, really supportive oak stools, in a natural finish are also good buys. 18"--$20, 24"--$22.50, 30"--$25.

Living Rooms. The upholstered pieces at the Workbench--sofas, chairs, loveseats, sleepers--are straigh-lined and plumply upholstered over shredded or molded polyurethane foam. Well-constructed and nicely detailed in nylon tweed, cotton corduroy, velvet or duck in natural, green, rust, brown.

The Workbench is located at 55 State Road in Princeton. Store hours are Monday through Saturday, 10-6, Thursday 10-8, closed Sunday.

COMPLETE DECORATING

Saves Time and Money. You'll leave your decorating cares behind when you cross the threshold of Saum's Paints and Wallpapers. For the Saums family has a complete decorating service--paint, wallpaper, fabrics, rugs, window shades, even furniture--all to be coordinated to

Princeton Regional School HIGHLIGHTS

WHO'S NEW IN THE SCHOOLS?

New people bring with them new ideas, methods and purposes PRS has a fresh viewpoint with the appointment of Dr. Paul Houston as superintendent and Mr. Paul Jennings as assistant superintendent Since the latter position was created as of the beginning of the current school year, the duties are many and varied Curriculum - across the board - will be the major task confronting Mr. Jennings. Aocording to Webster's dictionary, that's the "whole body of courses offered in an educational institution"; to Paul Jennings it is even more Revising the present courses of study with an eye to what is taught, when it's taught, and even the where, why and how of teaching are his concerns. The assessment of our district as a whole will be followed by a look at individual programs and departments Evaluation by testing, comparing and observation will be a primary part of curriculum study This process will lead to better ideas on teacher in-service training and development, for it will pinpoint areas where help is needed "All this," said Mr Jennings, "will have to relate to the T and E goals and objectives " And as to help with the job at hand he added, "The Princeton area is so rich in institutions, agencies and people that we hope to tap those supplies of talent and energy to improve the entire program."

Paul Jennings should know, he's involved the community in areas that range from the mountains of South America to the sidewalks of New York!

WHAT'S NEW IN THE SCHOOLS?

Schools, like people, aren't static They change to keep pace with the needs, desires, and even the finances of the times Here are some of the new additions to PRS, Fall 1977

The freshmen class will be doing a 5 week unit on study skills. Included in the program will be listening, critical reading, note-taking, outlining, test-taking, locating information and other process skills which will help students in their academic work. In order to teach the program effectively, the ninth grade teachers and the program supervisor, Dr. Marion Kimberly, have attended a three day training workshop this August.

New courses offered at Princeton High School: English – Speech, Debate, Styles of Writing, Selected Topics in English. Science – Biology I, Accelerated; Chemistry I, Accelerated. Social Studies – World Problems, U.S History II for speakers of other languages, American Alternatives, Legal Influences on Recent American History

The Cultural Impact Committee, an offshoot of the PTO Council, includes members from each school in the district. Their purpose is to enrich the schools' curriculum by encouraging and sometimes arranging special programs in the arts. This fall a poet-in-residence will present a program to middle school students.

Evaluation of learning (equals) report cards. At the John Witherspoon Middle School this now means a double set of grades as the staff changes reporting to include academic progress with letter grades (A,B,C,D,F) and social conduct (C, commendable, to U, unsatisfactory) Absences and tardy reports will be listed and a place for teacher comments provided Unlike the reporting forms issued in quadruplicate during the past years, this 1977-78 report will be the "sign and return" variety For parents desiring conferences regarding their student's work, a phone number for arranging such meetings will be listed on the report card

THE Howard B Waxwood, Jr Memorial Fund, initiated by the Princeton Regional Scholarship Foundation, invites contributions from the members of the Princeton community Mr Waxwood was a much respected educator and civic leader here throughout his life Checks may be sent to this fund in care of the high school, a scholarship grant will be awarded to a worthy recipient in June, 1978

A FEW openings remain in the PHS pre-schoolers class that meets during the first semester on Tuesday and Thursday mornings from 9.00 to 10 40; beginning in late January the classes are expanded to a four day schedule (MTuThF) while the time span remains the same. For further information in regard to enrollment parents may contact Nancy Arcamone, teacher-in-charge, by calling the high school at 924-5603 and leaving a number for a return call when Mrs. Arcamone is free of scheduled teaching duties.

ALL SENIORS and their parents should plan to attend the annual Senior Night on Wednesday, October 19, at 8 00 p.m. in the cafeteria The Guidance and Administrative staffs will discuss needs and programs particular to seniors. Post high school programs will be emphasized

FAMILY TRADITION: Eileen Seums, Bob Saums, Wanda Saums, daughter, father, mother continue a tradition of 30 years in home-decorating from their family-owned business, Seums Paints and Wallpapers in Hopewell.

It's New to Us

your taste by Mrs. Saums or her daughter, Eileen, at no charge. Mr. Saums makes all the measurements and does the installing.

Mr. Saums worked with his father in the home decorating business for 10 years before he and Mrs. Saums started their own store in Hopewell in 1957. Eileen grew up steeped in its atmosphere and it was only natural that she major in Interior Design at Endicott College in Beverly, Mass., and rejoin her family as a full-fledged decorator.

Customer Services. You will be completely spoiled by the services offered to you. Tell Mrs. Saums or Eileen what effect you hope to achieve, and the amount you want to invest.

They will prepare several color-coordinated decorating schemes for your selection. Once you settle on a scheme, the Saums will call on qualified people to make it a reality.

The Saums do make house calls, but there's a charge for that. Mrs. Saums charges $35 per call; Eileen, $50, because she offers the additional service of drawing up floor plans and will take you to New York to select furniture.

Using a decorating service saves time and money. Both Mrs. Saums and Eileen know exactly which patterns will make you cross-eyed and which will be a joy to behold every day. They can visualize a small sample as a larger piece and keep you from making inconvenient and costly mistakes.

Wallpaper and Fabrics. Both women avoid the more commonly used patterns and fabrics and try to give you something you won't see everywhere. Among the unusual fabrics are the Gardisette seamless drapery materials imported from Vienna. They are beautiful, loosely woven or translucent materials in white or naturals, weighted with a tiny thread of lead. The yardage is measured by the width of the drapery needed. $13 yd.

The store also carries the Greeff, imported, hand-embroidered fabrics of washable dacron and cotton. These are ideal for dust ruffles and canopies (and would also make a lovely dress). About 44" wide, $10.50–$21.90 yd.

The Van Luit line of wallpers and fabrics is new, from California, and has a wonderful collection of murals. One very elegant and imposing scenic was "In a Persian Garden," oriental figures on a gold background. $145 set of two panels.

Other lines of wallpaper and coordinated fabrics include Schumacher, Waverly, Katzenbach and Warren, Strahan, Thibaut, Crown, Greeff.

Window Shades. Mr. Saums has a shade machine that makes custom shades using your fabric. Because he buys the laminating shade cloth in bolts and makes your shades at the store, you enjoy them sooner and pay less for them. Average cost, $18.

Paint. Saums carries the Fuller O'Brien paints in standard and custom colors, and colonial colors from Turco's Colour Cupboard, as well as a complete line of paint supplies.

Floor Coverings. You'll find carpeting by Armstrong, Magee, Pepperell, Mohawk—all easy-care synthetics. Don't miss the carpets by Viking--closely woven carpets with a foam back that are easy to shampoo--ideal for kitchens in tweedy, braided, shaded effects in rich colors that don't show the soil.

Hard-surface flooring includes collections by Armstrong, GAF, Congoleum, and Manning in sheets or tiles in popular no-wax patterns and many others.

Saums Paints and Wallpapers is located at 75 Princeton Avenue in Hopewell. Store hours are 8:30-6 Monday through Friday; 9-5 Saturday, closed Sunday.

Say: HOLD THE LINE ON THE PROPERTY TAX

Kate Litvack...
"A steeply rising property tax impacts hardest on middle income families and retirees. We want to keep the kind of community we have. Princeton ought not to become a town which only the wealthy can afford."

David Klein...
"We have to take a hard look at municipal expenditures. We have to find ways to broaden the tax base so the major burden doesn't fall on the homeowner. We have to apply the best economic principles to municipal management."

Value of Open Space
To the Editor of Town Topics:

Each day on my way to work I drive through Hopewell and east out along Route 518 as far as the Great Road, which comes out from Princeton and intersects 518 at the Dairy Queen in Blawenburg. Route 518 runs along the crest of a little ridge between Hopewell and Blawenburg, and the land on the south side of it slopes down to Bedens Brook and then rises towards Princeton, making a valley a mile or so across. As you drive along the road, you can look across the valley: a patchwork of woods, fields, and farms, dotted with barns and siloes and crops that change color with the seasons, this valley is still a rural scene, a long stretch of open land, and one of the most uncluttered views in this part of New Jersey. It seems to me that it constitutes an aesthetic natural resource in the Princeton--Hopewell--Montgomery area and ought to be set aside as open space that cannot be developed.

The difficulty in setting aside open space for the future is that its value is not economic. It is felt that farmland, or any open land, does not generate enough income in taxes for the amount of space it takes up, and thus becomes a kind of economic burden on the rest of the community. But it is being argued by some planners now--Suffolk County, L.I., is an example--that it may actually be cheaper in the long run for an area to preserve a healthy percentage of its open space, because when industry, commerce, and density housing developments come to a community the new taxes they generate are never adequate to pay for the associated or fringe expenses of a region's growth -- new or wider roads, sewers, schools, a larger police force, etc.

In addition, it is important to remember that not every element of a healthy place to live has a monetary value, and open space, scenic views, and the feeling of not being too crowded are things which everyone agrees are important, but which cannot be measured in dollars and cents.

This part of central New Jersey still has enough open land and farmland left to include it in its planning for the future--though most of it, like the area to the south of Route 518, is up for sale. But in order to build communities which in addition to having an economic base are also restful, relaxing, mentally healthy places to live--communities which have a healthy balance between built-up areas and areas of open land--planning commissions are going to have to figure into their budgets and their master plans things like open space, scenery, and farmland, which have no clear economic value, but are as essential as things which do.

Rummage Sale Successful.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

We are very happy to announce that we have had another successful rummage sale for the benefit of the Medical Center at Princeton. However, without the support of many people, this would not have been possible. We are deeply grateful to the community who contributed so generously and to all those who came to buy.

A special thanks must go to the host of volunteers who gave hours of hard work for this worthy project. The efforts of all those who assisted us in any way are gratefully appreciated. Our heartfelt thanks.

Bus Fare Increase Protested.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

The following letter has been sent to the U.S. Interstate Commerce Commission with copies to Suburban Transit, and to Governor Brendan Byrne. People wishing to support this protest should send similar letters to the Interstate Commerce Commission and to the Suburban Transit Corporation, 750 Somerset Street, New Brunswick, N.J.

The Suburban Transit Corporation of 750 Somerset Street, New Brunswick, New Jersey has just posted a public notice of an 8 percent fare increase effective October 31st. The notice states that protests against the proposed fare increase and requests for its suspension should be submitted to you twelve days before the effective date of the fare change. I am sending this letter to you today to protest and to request suspension.

Fare raising has become almost an annual event for Suburban. But this time around there are some differences. First, this is the largest percentage increase Suburban has asked for despite the fact that the national rate of inflation has slowed.

Second, Suburban has called for this increase immediately after granting its employees a wage raise of 6.6 percent. Even allowing for the consequent increase in the wage bill, the simple fact is that labor costs are only one part of Suburban's operating budget. Presumably the justification for the stepped up rate increase lies elsewhere. The question is where. And this gets us to my third point.

As a New Jersey tax payer, I have just helped contribute to Suburban's capital by virtue of the New Jersey Department of Transportation renting Suburban ten new buses at the rate of $1 a year per bus. The purchase costs of these buses, therefore, comes out of our collective tax dollars. These buses make it possible for Suburban to improve its fleet at virtually no cost to the company. At a minimum, the bus rental arrangement must save Suburban considerable investment costs. It must also produce savings in maintenance, since it relieves Suburban of the need to keep up some of its older equipment. Also, the warranties that go with new vehicles undoubtedly provide some savings, too. So why the 8 percent increase at this time?

I, therefore, urge most strongly that Suburban's proposed fare increase be suspended and the Suburban's books be scrutinized most carefully before additional financial burdens are imposed on that part of the New Jersey riding public which must use Suburban's services.

How to Maintain the Dinky.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

This letter is in reply to the letter of Professor Enoch Durbin in the October 5 TOWN TOPICS, and other recent letters concerning the economics of operation of the Princeton shuttle train ("Dinky").

My first point is that incomparable figures were used in Professor Durbin's letter. He compared a cost figure (based on present ridership) for the Dinky of about $1.25 per passenger with a fare figure (based on a monthly commutation ticket) for Suburban Transit of $1.75.

If I were to compare instead fare with fare, I would get a fare of about 12 cents for the Dinky portion of the train ride to New York. Or, on the other hand, if I were to use a cost figure for a relatively unsubsidized bus ride to New York, I should look at the Greyhound one-way fare of $4.85. Nor is it clear, based on the subsidized fares, that train travel from Princeton to New York is significantly more expensive than bus travel. A one-day round trip to New York via Conrail is $6.25 and a round-trip via Suburban Transit will be $5.40 beginning the 31st of the month. The fact that the train provides a significantly more comfortable ride in little more than half the time of the bus makes it a better bargain, in my opinion.

My second, and perhaps most significant point, is that buses and trains are not comparable. Most train passengers want a train and not a bus ride.

As economical as the use of a loop bus to replace the dinky may seem, I am extremely doubtful that the proximity of a bus stop will lure many present Dinky passengers to the bus. The long ride and the unreliable connection at the Junction will force most passengers to take their cars to the Junction. As convenient or necessary as the present loop bus may be to those temporarily or permanently without cars, I doubt that many are taking advantage of the connection with the Dinky.

My third point is that I doubt that the preservation of the Dinky is an historical or aesthetic matter alone, but that proper scheduling and operation of the line could make sense as a matter of reasonable transportation. First of all, I believe the findings of the recent Congressional budget office report as quoted by Professor Durbin are not relevant here, since they apply to new construction, taking into account the enormous costs of forging new rail lines or digging for new subways through crowded cities. By that consideration, there would be a great disutility in breaking up the present Dinky right-of-way. Part of the reason for the present high real cost of the dinky ride is the small number of passengers who must "pay" for the entire cost of maintaining a rail link. Any increase of ridership or of freight on this line would distribute maintenance costs to the extent that passenger travel would become comparable in cost to that on the main line.

An excellent way to increase passenger traffic on the Dinky (and I think on the main line as well) would be to fill in the gaps in the present schedule. Early morning, late night, midday, and after-dinner trains are not met, breaking the continuity of service for many round trip passengers, and encouraging them to drive to Princeton Junction or to take the bus if they are headed for New York.

N.C. WYETH'S ILLUSTRATION usad as endpapers for "The Last of the Mohicans" is included in Squibb Gallery's current exhibition of works by the founder of one of America's most impressive families of fine artists. The exhibition, open through October, also contains landscapes, still lifes, portraits and a work created for a 1941 Squibb advertisement.

WYETH EXHIBIT OPENS

At Squibb Gallery. The exhibition of paintings by N.C. Wyeth on display at the E.R. Squibb Gallery (Route 206, South) offers a second chance to contemplate some of childhood's favorite images. Wyeth was ooe of the most popular and prolific illustrators of his time and was responsible for the personification of some of the best-loved characters in childrens' books.

Heroes and villains in the great adventure stories of Western literature came to life for two generations of young readers. From his imagination emerged the vivid characterizations of Captain Horatio Hornblower, Robin Hood and his men, the Last of the Mohicans and many other familiar characters. For 40 years, his work reached millions of readers of magazines, brochures and the nearly 200 books that he illustrated.

Although most people are familiar with one or another of his illustrations, it comes as a pleasant surprise to find that the small colored pages out of favorite books began their existence as large, well-executed, carefully-crafted oil paintings. The many works displayed in this collection make it clear that Wyeth was as important as a painter as he was as a storyteller. Although the narrative quality in each of the illustrations is powerful, the painterly quality is equally strong. The paintings are well composed pieces constructed out of exciting color passages, dramatic brushwork and tonal contrasts.

The paintings that were the source of the illustrations are accompanied by other works in a more formal mode. Still life, portraits and landscapes offer the viewer another aspect of this artist's talents. The paintings span Wyeth's lifetime and reveal his painterly sensitivity, great strengths as a colorist and his ability to use his art as a vehicle for effective communication with his public. The obvious pleasure that he received from his work is easily sensed in family portraits and a self portrait that expresses the joy and confidence that is a part of an artist in control of his medium

This exhibition should be billed as a collection for children of all ages. There is enough of the child in every man to recreate the sense of heightened adventure that these paintings evoke. For those who love painting, there is an equal amount of pleasurable viewing to be had.

Gallery hours are from 9 to 4:30 Monday through Friday, with extended hours until 9 on Thursday from 1 to 5 on Sunday.

At The Loft. Two painters illustrate the stylistic extremes possible within the range of realistic painting. Primitive painter Lillian Jones has created a collection of very small paintings including landscape, still life renderings of the familiar and the overly familiar.

This artist has previously demonstrated her skill in presenting her personal views of life around her. She continues to offer pleasingly developed local landscapes that embody the integrity and charm of her earlier paintings. She has also created a large number of tiny overly precious cliches including pussicats in baskets, owls and other Sunday painter-type subjects.

Martin Minahan renders the landscape using the brush of a highly-trained painter. Sophisticated technical passages, a competent approach to his surface and careful paint application yield pleasing, realistic works.

At Western Electric. Larger-than-life-sized figurative paintings by Howard Siskowitz include dancers, swimmers, prize fighters and an oversized form of portraiture. The show "Bathers and Other Heroes", appears to be a collection in the contemporary mode rather than a form of personal expression. The artist's color and brushwork is not always with him in this collection but the dancing lesson is a fine enough painting to make us hope for more from Mr. Siskowitz in the future.

At McCarter Theatre. The Princeton Art Association Winners Exhibition features oils, watercolors, graphics and photography by the four artists who were awarded first prize in their respective media. With the exception of the graphics, the work on display does not offer the degree of excellence we would hope to find in the winner's circle. The collection is deviled by cliches, gimmicks and, in some cases, technical forms which leave much to be desired.

At the Present Day Club. Watercolor paintings of the Indian Pueblo in Taos by Dagmar Trihble are featured, together with pencil studies of the same subject. The paintings are traditional representations. The sketches that accompany the paintings are worthy of careful study for their sensitive, fluid renditions of the somewhat formal subject matter.

TOWN HOUSES UP

On Moore Street. The 11 brick urban townhouses on Moore Street are well under way, and occupancy is planned for around the first of the year. The project is under roof, and the brick exterior is over half completed. The insulated windows are currently being installed, which will complete enclosure of the houses.

Architect and developer, J. Robert Hillier, president of Design Interface, Inc., characterizes this project as "offering an in-town style of living which is increasing in demand. The brown brick and mortar, bronze tinted glass, and decorative paving will produce an elegant project, which, although small, has significance in terms of the changing lifestyles we are experiencing in Princeotn," he said.

Nine of the townhouses are three-bedroom, and the two end units have four bedrooms on the top floor. The townhouses vary in size from 2300 to 2700 square feet., and the prices have ranged from $99,500 to $134,500. All have been sold.

The three-story units have ground floor garages and a game room which opens to private rear gardens. On the intermediate levels the dining room overlooks the high-ceilinged living room. Adjacent to the dining room are the kitchen and family room, overlooking the block paved forecourt on Willow Street.

According to Edmund A. Wilson, Jr., vice president of Design Interface, the final exterior touches are the paving of the forecourts along Willow Street, the brick garden wall along Moore Street, and the landscaping.

Edward M. Stahl

The First National Bank's main office is located at 90 Nassau Street; branches include the East Nassau Office, 370 East Nassau (near Harrison); West Windsor, 40 Washington Road; Lawrence Township, Princeton Pike; and Princeton Commerce Center, 29 Emmons Drive, Building E (off Route 1). The bank is a member of United Jersey Banks, the Princeton-based holding company with assets of more than 2.2 billion.

WATERCOLOR OFFERED

By Savings and Loan. Princeton Savings and Loan Association is offering a limited edition set of 350 grey watercolor paintings depicting the Steamboat-Railroad Hotel in Princeton, circa 1839. The paintings are being sold to the public as part of Princeton Savings' 60th Anniversary Celebration, according to president William Boozer.

The railraod linking Perth Amboy to Camden reached Princeton in 1839. It replaced most passenger travel on the 1834 canal which also passed through the quaint, sleepy town of Princeton. During the 1830's and up until 1864 when the main tracks of the railroad were moved to Princeton Junction to facilitate transfer of troops for the Civil War battles in Pennsylvania, the hotel was a bustling center for commerce, freight and settlers en route to the West across the Delaware River.

The 16'' x 20'' original handpainted watercolor prints depicting that scene are matted and framed. A certificate of limited edition is mounted on the reverse side to insure its value as a collectors' item.

The public may purchase the painting while supply lasts at any Princeton Savings office in Princeton, Lawrenceville, or Plainsboro. They sell at $19.95 plus tax or for $14.95 with a $100 deposit to a new or existing savings account.

News Of The CHURCHES

ROUTE ANNOUNCED

For CROP Walk. The Fourth Annual CROP Walk will begin Sunday at 1 at Princeton High School, Murray-Dodge Hall on the Princeton University campus, or Lutheran Church of the Messiah, 407 Nassau Street. Walkers at any point of entry make the full circle.

Beginning at the Lutheran Church where there is parking, walkers will proceed down Cedar Street to Prospect Avenue to Murray Dodge Hall on the campus, where undergraduates will join the group. The route next goes down Witherspoon, across Franklin and Houghton to pick up more participants at Princeton High School.

Walkers will then proceed along Walnut Lane to Coyler and Ewing Street and to Mt. Lucas Road. They will follow Mt. Lucas to Princeton Avenue and on into Rocky Hill, where they will take a left onto Crescent Avenue and a right onto Washington in order to pass by the regional headquarters of CROP. The return route follows River Road back to Lincoln Highway, Route 27, to the starting point.

The Princeton walk is one of many in Mercer County on Sunday. The goal for Princeton is at least 300 walkers and a financial gain of $10,000 toward developmental assistance in agriculture, water development, housing, nutrition, and in education-literacy courses for adults and children. In the past three years Princeton participation has given over $40,000.

Terry Grove, New Jersey Regional Director of CROP, indicates that CROP is not only for overseas aid, but has been helpful in recent Jamestown and Kansas City floods as well. In these cases, emergency aid in the form of money, clothing, and people have been important in the recovery process.

The CROP walk includes participants from most of the churches as well as Princeton High School, Princeton Day School, Stuart Day School, Princeton University, Princeton Theological Seminary, Westminster Choir College; and also the Princeton JC's. Those who are interested in walking or making a contribution may call one of these or the New Jersey CROP office, 924-6466.

CROP is the Community Hunger Appeal of Church World Service for programs in over 40 countries around the world. Nationwide in 1976, CROP raised just under ten million dollars in financial and in kind gifts. The cost of administrating CROP program is 8 percent, so that 84 percent of contributions aid the hungry and the poor to help themselves into new ways of living.

DUNGAN BID REJECTED

At $161,000. A bid to buy the state - owned former home of Ralph A. Dungan on Hodge Road for $161,000 was rejected by Governor Brendan T. Byrne last week. The house was occupied by Mr. Dungan when he was state Chancellor of Higher Education. The new chancellor lives elsewhere, and the state has been trying to sell the property.

The state had set a minimum price of $215,000. The house is estimated to need between $40,000 and $80,000 in repairs.

SCHOOL TO BENEFIT

From Garage Sale. The Cherry Hill Nursery School is sponsoring a garage sale of new and used household and children's items on Saturday, October 22, from 10 to 2 at the Unitarian Church, State and Cherry Hill Roads.

Since Cherry Hill is a non-profit and cooperative school, the parents and faculty have combined to solicit and collect toys, furniture, books, and many new items. All proceeds go into the School's scholarship fund.

Cherry Hill was founded on the belief that early stimulation in childhood is vital in the development of individual potential. The scholarship program was initiated to ensure that ability to pay should not be a barrier to attendance.

Nancy White

HONORED FOR SERVICE

By Soroptimists. Nancy White, Director of Corner House, a counselling agency on Witherspoon Street serving adolescents, young adults and families, has been selected as the winning nominee for the Soroptimist International's "Women Helping Women Award."

Mrs. White was cited for her willingness in August 1972 to leave her position of six years as Executive Director of the Council of Community Services to undertake, at the request of an intergovernmental drug committee, the organization and direction of a treatment unit for adolescent drug abusers when the drug epidemic hit Princeton's youth. Her skills in understanding adolescents, their families, therapists, the community, funding and operating requirements, as well as the patience, tolerance, and kindness exhibited to all during an efficient administration of Corner House, led to her selection for this Soroptimist's yearly award from an outstanding group of nominees.

A 30-year resident of Princeton Township, Mrs. White is a graduate of Smith College and holds a Master's degree in Psychiatric Social Work from the Simmons College School of Social Work. She will be honored at dinner Tuesday at the Nassau Inn, with cocktails at 6 and dinner at 7. Cost of the dinner is $12.

Friends of Mrs. White are welcome. Reservations may be made with Helen Evatt, 924-1014, or with Doris Riley, 737-2765, before Friday

The selecting judges were Winifred Donahue, Secretarial Services; Alice Brown, director of the Princeton Historical Society; Ralph Hulit of Hulit's Shoes; Robert Staples, director of the Public Library, and Susie Waxwood, representing the Soroptimist International.

TOWN TOPICS is delivered without charge to every home in Princeton Borough and Township and to part or all of West Windsor, Lawrence, Hopewell, Montgomery, South Brunswick and Franklin Townships and Griggstown. At all newsstands, including TOWN TOPICS' office, it costs 20 cents.

All Four Candidates for Borough Council Agree: Parking Problem Is Prime Issue in Current Race

Parking. No question about it. Or rather, the fact that there is a question about it: should the Borough build one or more parking garages?

All four Council candidates agree that's the big one this year, and there isn't much disagreement among the four.

Borough voters will be asked to select two members of Council in November. Incumbents Nelson van den Blink and Leona Medvin are running on the Democratic ticket — Mrs. van den Blink for her second full three - year term, Mrs. Medvin for her first full term. She was elected last year to fill out the remaining year in her late husband's three - year term.

Republican opponents are Priscilla Waring, seeking a Council seat for the second time (she was defeated last year) and John Reid, making his debut in politics.

Asked to name "issues," the two Democrats agree that they do not see "issues," but rather, things that are now facing Council and require decision. Parking garages are number one.

"I see no alternative to parking garages. They are a 'must' for the Central Business District," Mrs. Medvin declared. "The more we 'postage - stamp' the CBD with parking lots, the fewer spaces we have for apartments and shops."

"I'm on the brink — I'm not saying we must have them no matter what," Mrs. van den Blink replied.

"We need people on Council who are more active," Ms. Waring said. "There is lots of talk, but little gets done. Last year when I ran, it was the same two problems: parking and housing. Council should make a concentrated effort to confront problems and deal with them, not keep saying 'Next month we'll talk about this.'"

"We are going to need the garages, but can't they be designed perhaps with shops or housing on the outside, so you wouldn't have simply the cheapest, ugliest thing?" Mr. Reid asked.

"If we want a healthy, competitive CBD, we need garages," Mrs. van den Blink continued. "Even before we heard about plans for an expanded Palmer Square, businesses were asking us when we'd have parking garages. But a library parking lot would abut a residential area. On the other hand, a lot should be where it will help the greatest number of businesses, and the Chambers lot would be on the edge."

"A lawyer I know," remarked Mrs. Medvin, "told me that if something isn't done about parking, he'll leave the One Palmer Square building."

"I hope," Ms. Waring said, "that we can achieve a compromise between free parking — it is not a RIGHT to park free in a town — and something so expensive it will scare people off. Also, I believe one garage is absolutely necessary. I'm not sure about two."

Rent-levelling is close to parking as a problem. The present ordinance expires December 31.

"I'm not gung ho about rent - levelling because it can be counter - productive," Ms. Waring observed. "Landlords do have increasing costs — and careless tenants! As I campaign, I hear people say the present ordinance doesn't seem to be well drawn. We should have one more effective in keeping rents within reason, while not restricting the desire of landlords to rent."

Rents are a subject which tenants bring up before the candidate has mentioned it, in Mrs. van den Blink's experience.

"Tenants are fearful that there will be no ordinance," she has found. "I am sympathetic to the tenant plight, but I want to be fair to the landlord."

"There must be a way to see that the landlord gets a fair return and the tenant is protected," Mrs. Medvin said. "We need more time to study the problem."

Ms. Waring is herself a tenant who must move, and she added, "I'm pretty appalled at the quality of housing and the prices. The landlord attitude seems to be 'We don't care if it's a slum — we know we can get such - and - such amount for it.'"

Revaluation of Borough properties?

"The longer we wait, the greater the impact," warned Mrs. Medvin.

"It's just a matter of time," Mrs. van den Blink agreed.

"Revaluation is inevitable," Mr. Reid said.

"It's the fair thing to do," Ms. Waring remarked.

Mrs. Medvin repeated a proposal she made last year that a Massachusetts plan be considered for the Borough. Under it, any tax increase related to revaluation is "forgiven" until the house is sold or passes into an estate.

"It's up to Council to protect people who might be forced out of town. The onus is on us," she said.

Mr. Reid proposes a similar idea. Ms. Waring suggests a "delay phase," or possible credit for senior citizens on property taxes, if evaluation brought an increase.

Both Republicans would like to see Council explore a conversion ordinance, which would allow home - owners to create flats within their own homes.

"A conversion ordinance would also help older people who really shouldn't be living alone," Ms. Waring said, "and it would answer the fears people have about increased densities. A flat wouldn't chew up green space."

"Allowing flats in big, old houses would be the quickest way to provide for students and young couples," Mr. Reid commented, "and I'm sure there are a lot of people rattling around in these houses who could use the extra money if they're on fixed incomes."

Consolidation?

"People are afraid the development of the Township — sewers, roads, lights — would be paid for by the Borough," Mrs. van den Blink has found. "Since Borough and Township already deal together in all major questions involving the big dollars, we act as a bicameral government now, and this is very valuable. The advantage of a joint planning board is that the Borough already has a 'say' in how the Township develops."

"What will happen to the Borough in dollars, if we consolidate and if we don't?" Mrs. Medvin asks. "If consolidation seemed to be

'The Confirmation,' Given Numerous Pluses, Found to Lack Originality and Sophistication

The McCarter Theatre Company opened its current season last week with a rousing production of "The Confirmation," a brand-new old-fashioned family comedy-drama about an upward mobile wife, an insecure 14-year-old daughter, and a husband who pines for the simplicities of his boyhood.

The play, here world-premiered, breaks no new ground; it echoes a string of 1930s and '40s works from "Father of the Bride" to "Awake and Sing" and "Death of a Salesman;" but it is so well cast, directed, and acted, and is so bursting with believable life, that most theater-goers will probably be caught up in it and have a good time.

PRINCIPALS: Herschel Benardi and Marilyn Chris have the leading roles in "The Confirmation," which will run through October 23 at McCarter. (Cliff Moore Photo)

Certainly it is a relief to find a new dramatist who dares to deal with some real problems of real people even though we have met these problems and people in more impressive plays.

News Of The THEATRES

The Polen family lives in a Baltimore suburban development in a house supposed to represent tackiness. The goodlooking, youngish mother, Sherrie, is frantically setting up for tomorrow's party to celebrate the confirmation of daughter Rachel in the Reformed Jewish temple which shares quarters with a Unitarian church.

Enter the Teenager. Rachel barges in after school, emits a four-letter word, dashes upstairs and locks herself in her room. Sherrie's well-tailored father, a success in the rapacious installment-house business, drops by with a carton of hard booze for the kids' party and some disquieting hints about the possible involvement of Sherrie's husband Arnold in a scheme to rip off another rapacious installment house which he, Arnold, rapes for.

Now Arnold arrives with a bellyache which he says one good belch will cure, but that turns out to be the understatement of the year. He is in fact fed up with pushing merchandise on poor people who can't afford it and then repossessing it the minute they fall behind in their $5-a-week payments. And he has a dream.

His mother and father, we learn, once ran a mom-and-pop grocery in downtown Baltimore and lived over the store. Arnold, with his brother, still owns the property and his dream is to sell this suburban house and move the family back to its, or rather his, roots. Since the old place is now in the heart of a galloping ghetto and Sherrie is an energetic woman who has just begun to climb, this is an idea whose time is long gone.

The 27-year-old author of "The Confirmation," Howard Ashman, writes deadly accurate sounding dialogue with occasional flashes of funny wit, and his play is entertaining both as comedy (of rough manners and family situation) and as melodrama (the conflict between Arnold and his father-in-law heats up at times). If comedy and melodrama overlap now and then, even the overlaps are lively.

But when this rather small play aspires to something larger, when it asks to be taken seriously as drama or social comment, it falls short.

Flawed Performance. Herschel Bernardi's otherwise warm and appealing performance as Arnold was marred for us by his strenuous effort to make desperately serious the plight of a man married to a woman tougher and more ambitious than himself but a responsible one who will give the poor dreamer the mothering he needs, though at a pretty high price to his masculine self-esteem, his ideals, and his digestion.

At play's end he is left with nothing but a better-paying job (with his father-in-law, but still --); a capable, goodlooking, rather amusing and not untalented wife who seems to like him, a really good kid of a daughter, and a, say, $50,000 "home" -- and the damned party is over!! This is not the stuff of drama. The play's general tone suggests that although he looks suicidal at the final curtain Arnold's next move will be to jump in bed with Sherrie and not under a passing truck.

Paging Ralph Nader. Gulling consumers is reprehensible, but simply throwing weak punches at that ancient practice is the moral equivalent of name-dropping. "The Confirmation" seems to be suggesting someone should invent Ralph Nader; but Someone already has.

We found Marilyn Chris more amusing than menacing as the neither all-good nor all-bad wife. An interesting actress. Note her small sexy wiggle when she kisses Arnold in Act I.

Does he really arouse her or is she simply trying to keep him conscious till the party's over? "The Confirmation" and its talented director, Kenneth Frankel (of last year's "Awake and Sing") deserve credit for not trying to answer every question their play raises.

Players Plan Auditions

Auditions, open to the public, will be held Monday and Tuesday, by the Princeton Community Players for "Many Moons" by James Thurber. The time: 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.; the place, the Players' theatre at 171 Broadmead.

"Many Moons" will be given as a pre-Christmas treat for children, with four Saturday performances on December 3 and 10, morning and afternoon. It will be in addition to the regular four-play season already announced by the Players.

Debbie Bellows, director of "Many Moons," will be casting 11 actors: five men and five women, one of whom plays a young girl. The 11th character, the Jester, can be played by either a man or a woman.

Obnoxious Yet Touching. Tara King is splendid, both obnoxious and touching, as young Rachel, who will have to be dragged kicking and screaming through puberty. We predict she will inherit her father's niceness and her mother's toughness, go through psychoanalysis, get a law degree, and civilize the installment business.

We liked Robert Riesel as Arnold's younger and even weaker brother; Alan Manson as the hard-bitten father-in-law; Minnie Gentry as the handsome, dignified old black lady who as a tenant has kept Arnold in touch with the family real estate and now tries to put him in touch with reality; Mara Mellin as Rachel's social precocious little friend; and Rosanna Carter and Phillip Lindsay as aloof, case-hardened caterer's helpers.

Marjorie Kellogg's set gives us the entire Polen house, from basement windows below stage level to dormer above, including backyard patio and prison-like fences at either side. If it seems to be literally reproducing rather than characterizing through simplification, it is taking its cue from the play.

Will "The Confirmation" get to Broadway as advertised, and if so, will it stay? It has heart, hunger, humor, pace: all important pluses. It lacks originality and sophistication. Meanwhile it's an enjoyable evening at McCarter, whose list of "Associates" grows so long we foresee a time when it will be simpler to list everyone in the area who is NOT helping fund this commendable enterprise.

"HANSEL & GRETEL"

On Strings. Right out of romantic, bewitched old Bavaria come Hansel and Gretel, dressed in lederhosen and wearing the strings of the Vagabond Marionettes.

Carrying the Humperdinck opera score under their arms, they'll arrive in McCarter next Saturday, October 22, with performances at 11 a.m., and 2 p.m., for, as the saying goes, young and old.

A live actor--James Georffrey--will play the father of the children. There is also a shivvery "Black-light" scene, in which the wicked witch conjures up lollypops, gumdrops and other kinds of cavity-causing goodies as as gingerbread, to lure the lost children.

Vagabond Marionette characters--Pinocchio, Br'er Rabbit and associates--will be at McCarter to say "hello" to the audience, answer any questions and to talk about Life.

ELECTRONICS!

And Comedy. Lights, music and comedy will be on the playbill this Friday and Saturday at Theatre Intime's Murray Theatre on the University campus.

TO OPEN WITH VERDI

Amateurs to Sing Requiem. The Society of Musical Amateurs will open its 42nd season on Sunday at 4 at the Unitarian Church, Cherry Hill Road off Route 206. Prof. Merrill Knapp of the Princeton University Music Department will conduct a reading-rehearsal of the Verdi "Requiem," with chorus, full orchestra, and soloists, namely, Mary Kemp, soprano; Cynthia Lake, alto; Bruce Turner, tenor; and Stephen Owen, bass.

The Society is a unique Princeton organization. Singers and orchestral players from as far away as Philadelphia and northern New Jersey, but mainly from the Princeton area, gather together on one Sunday afternoon a month from October through April to read through for their own pleasure one or more great works in the choral literature.

Participants range from those with modest sight-reading ability, to singers and instrumentalists of professional caliber. All parts of the community are represented--townspeople, undergraduates, professors, commuters, high school students, and housewives--in this common and joyful enterprise of making music together. The chorus ranges in size from 75 to 150 on any given Sunday, and the orchestra, from 20 to 35 in number. No auditions are required to sing in the chorus.

Anyone interested in singing solo parts, unless known to one of the conductors, should get in touch with Mrs. Michael Ramus at 924-4266. Instrumentalists are asked to contact Rogers Woolston at 921-2478 for information about playing in the orchestra.

In addition to Prof. Knapp, the conductors for the 1977-78 season will include Igor Chichagov, director and conductor of the Princeton Opera Association; Prof. Walter Nollner, conductor of the Princeton University Glee Club and Chapel Choir; and Raymond Robinson, president of Westminster Choir College.

Other programs planned are November 13, Schubert, "Mass in E flat"; December 18, Handel "Messiah"; February 12, Bach Cantatas 131 and 140; March 12, Haydn "Heiligmesse"; April 9, Bach "Mass in B minor."

The Musical Amateurs have regular membership dues or a single-admission charge at the door, to defray the cost of the hall, the music, and refreshments served at intermission time. Anyone wishing to attend may do so by checking with Mrs. Ramus by telephone. There is no admission fee for students, or for those who come only to listen.

PIANIST TO PLAY

In Series I Concert. Alexis Weissenberg, pianist, will be heard in the first concert this season of Series I of the Princeton University Concerts on Monday at 8:30 in McCarter Theatre.

Born in Sofia, Bulgaria, Mr. Weissenberg began his piano studies there and later continued his musical education in Israel, where he made his professional debut at the age of 14. Overwhelmingly acclaimed, he was immediately invited to make a tour of South Africa, then came to America to attend the Juilliard School of music. After a successful tour of Israel, Egypt, Turkey and South America, he returned to make his American debut with the New York Philharmonic, under the direction of George Szell.

The same year he won the International Leventritt Competition, was invited to appear with Eugene Ormandy and the Philadelphia Orchestra and launched a concert tour throughout the United States. For several years following, he made annual tours of America, Europe, South America and the Near East.

Mr. Weissenberg has performed as soloist with The New York Philharmonic, the Berlin Philharmonic under Herbert von Karajan and with the Chicago and Montreal symphonies, and he has been heard in recital with the Great Performers Series at Philharmonic Hall. For this concert he will perform Franck-Bauer: Prelude, Fuge and Variation; Schumann: Davidsbundlertanse; Chopin: Five Nocturnes; Stravinsky: Trois Mouvements de "Petrouchka."

Tickets are available at the McCarter Theatre box office and student tickets at $2.50 may be purchased the day of the concert at the box office.

EXPERIMENTS....

At State Museum. As part of the "Alternatives" series at the New Jersey State Museum, a program called "Sound" will be given this Thursday at 8 p.m. at the museum, 205 West State Street, Trenton.

The program will include composer Phill Niblock's "First Performance," with Joseph Celli on oboe with electronic tape, and "Descent" with cellist David Gibson.

David Behrman, who employs live electronic sound in his compositions, will present his "Music for Cello, English Horn, Microcomputer and Homemade Electronics."

Mr. Gibson, as performer and composer, will be represented by "Tear of the Clouds," using a live and taped clavichord. Dashuki Music Theatre will present a chamber opera, "Plasm over ocean," by Dennis Bathory Kitsz to a text by David Gunn. Dashuki is known among New Jersey musicians for its work in avant-garde musical performance.

Tickets for "Sound" are $3.50, $2.50 with student identification card.

favorable to the Borough in terms of school costs, would it be a good thing?"

"People are scared to death of consolidation. They're afraid it means higher taxes," Mr. Reid said.

"Voters I've talked to seem to think the Township is just one big estate after another, and the Borough would be overwhelmed by the rich Township," Ms. Waring said. "They haven't been made aware of the positive aspects, such as increased efficiency of services."

"Council should carefully examine the pros and cons as presented in the consolidation committee report," she proposed.

In other areas of community life, Mr. Reid said he feels very strongly about town - gown relationships, including the Seminary and Westminster Choir College, as well as Princeton University in his "gown" definition.

"We should make every effort to get along with one another and to make things easier for one another," he said.

SCHOLARSHIPS TO HUN

$40,000 from Reader's Digest. A grant of $40,000 from the DeWitt Wallace Fund has been awarded to The Hun School for Reader's Digest scholarships for the next four years. Headmaster Thomas M. "This grant will help close the gap between rising educational expenses and the funds generated by families already making full efforts to provide an independent school education for their children," the Headmaster stated. The grant will extend over four years, providing $10,000 annually for the financial old program.

Parents Day Saturday. Parents Day at The Hun School will be held Saturday. Classroom visits and meetings of parents' organizations will highlight the morning program. Luncheon will be followed in the afternoon by football and cross country competition with Blair Academy.

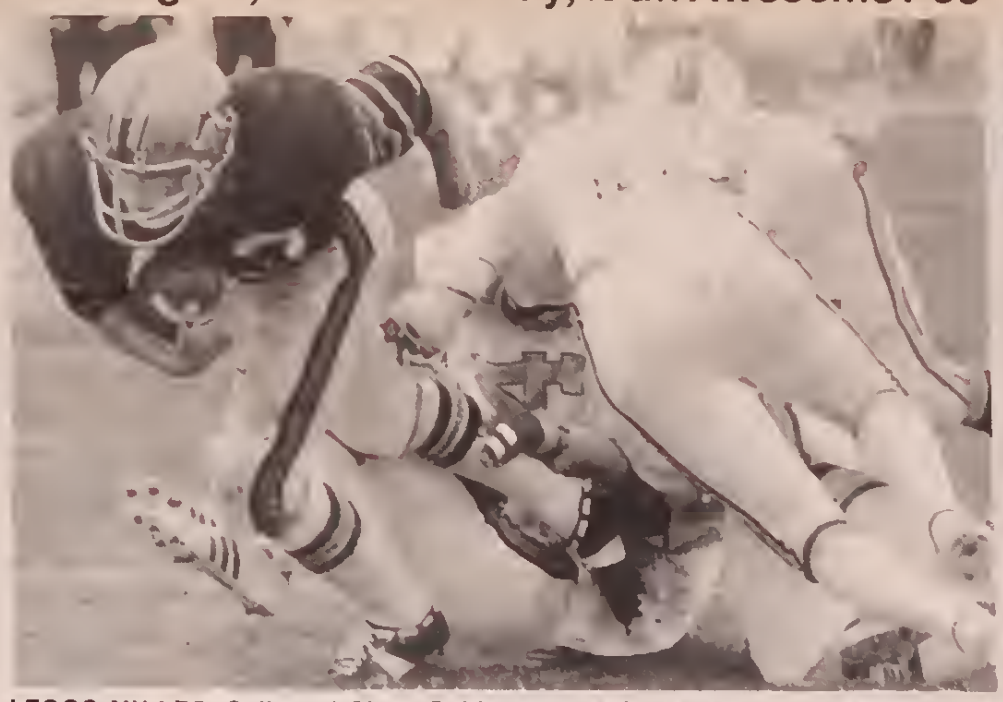
Hungry Tigers Finally Enjoy a Victory, 28-7, But Colgate, Here Saturday, Is an Awesome Foe



LEGGO MY LEG: Split end Glenn Robinson breaking away from thrae Columbia delenders after catching pass on 2-yard line Saturday. When he scorad on the play, the touchdown raised Tigers' hall-time margin lo 14-0 in evanlual 28-7 victory.

(Bob Matthews Photo)

Princeton's 1977 football schedule, made up in the latter years of the last decade and then revised to accommodate the earlier start in the Ivy League, is one of the greatest barriers on the team's rocky road toward a respectable record. First, the Tigers were booked against three of their toughest opponents, two of them on road trips, and now that they have snapped their eight-game losing streak, they are immediately confronted by the team ranked no. 1 in the East.

SPORTS In Princeton

Colgate, 5 and 0, and a strong candidate for the Lambert Trophy unless the weakness of its schedule is weighted against it, will be in Palmer Stadium Saturday at 1:30. The Red Raiders have rolled over Rutgers, Lafayette, Cornell, Harvard and Holy Cross by margins ranging from 6 to 23 points, and after this weekend, have only Columbia, B.U., Bucknell, Northeastern and Delaware to play.

Even though Princeton's defense has yielded an average of only 10 points in its first four games, the Tigers figure to be overmatched by the superb balance in running and passing that Colgate has shown this season. Halfback Henry White is averaging better than seven yards a carry and fullback Pat Healy is closing in on Colgate's all-time rushing record, held by Mark Van Eeghen, who now starts for the Oakland Raiders.

Operating behind an interior line averaging 234 pounds, quarterback Bob Relph has a pass completion average of over 60 percent, which last week was fourth best in the nation. In his first four games, every fifth completion he threw was for a touchdown. He also carries frequently out of the Colgate Wing T, so that his total offense average of around 220 yards a game is about equal to that of the entire Princeton team.

QUICK LOOK AT COLGATE

OFFENSE: Statistically awesome. Averaging 448 yards a game, evenly balanced between running and passing, which in turn has been productive of 31 points a game.

DEFENSE: Has allowed five opponents average of two touchdowns each, including three to both Cornell and Harvard, but does the job while basking in light of offense's power.

CHIEF ASSET: Has been rated no. 1 in East and is better than an even bet to remain unbeaten.

CHIEF PROBLEM: Mounting pressure from awareness that 11-0 record is within reach.

TYPE OF ATTACK: Wing T

As if that weren't enough, kicker Jerry Andrewlavage, who handles both the punting and the placekicking duties, is a real pro prospect. He is averaging 42 yards on his punts, has booted 6 of 8 field goal attempts and has a range as long as 50 yards.

Defensively, the New York State team has occasionally been in trouble, largely because half of its strong 1976 unit had to be rebuilt. Cornell and Holy Cross, neither of which has won a game this season, gave the unbeaten Raiders trouble. Bob Blackman's team was very much within hailing distance (28-22) until the clock ran out, and two second-period Holy Cross touchdowns Saturday tied the game at 14 before Colgate put the last 17 points on the board. Of the last six games on the Colgate schedule, Princeton and Delaware may give Coach Fred Dunlap the most trouble, but his team is unlikely to be caught here Saturday reading its newspaper clippings.

A GOOD DAY FOR ALL

As Tigers Beat Columbia, 28-7. All the things that Princeton's oft-frustrated football team wanted to do in one afternoon came together Saturday and the result was

SPORTS FANS I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

Brought to you By John Bernard

Here's an interesting World Series question ... Since World War II, four men have hit home runs in a World Series for BOTH an American League and a National League team ... Who are they? ... Answer: Enos Slaughter, Bill Skowron, Roger Maris and Frank Robinson.

Did you know that, oddly enough, there was once a World Series in which two brothers were the winning pitcher in EVERY game won by the winning team in that Series ... It happened in the 1934 World Series when, for the victorious Cardinals, Dizzy Dean won two games, and his brother, Paul, won the other two.

Has any team ever lost the first three games of a World Series and then come back to win that Series? ... Several teams have lost the first two games and then won the Series--but no team has ever yet lost the first three games, and then won the Series.

If you have a fire loss, you must substantiate your claim--pictures of all your rooms, silverware and jewelry would prove very helpful.

total domination of an opponent with a respectable 2-1 record. In rolling to a touchdown in each quarter before yielding one to Columbia in the closing minutes, the Tigers got another 100-yard plus performance from their fine running back, Co-Captain Bobby Isom; the best performance quarterback Kirby Lockhart has given in the 11 games he has started; and another solid job from the defensive unit that may give the still unpredictable offense a shot at winning the five games left on the schedule.

Carrying 23 times for 106 yards and one of the touchdowns, Isom raised his career rushing total to 1,019. Lockhart ran for the first Princeton TD, passed 12 yards to split end Glenn Rohinson for the second and added 67 yards in total offense as he completed 5 for 11 in the air.

Defensively, Princeton did the trick thoroughly, very nearly shutting out a team that had averaged three touchdowns in its first three games. In fact, after causing a fumble that abruptly ended the visitors' 78-yard drive following the kickoff, the Orange and Black yielded only 31 more yards on the ground and gave up just 222 in total offense.

As they have since the opener at Hanover, numerous players (ends Bill Mitchell and Tim Earley, nose guard Pete Fubke, backs Andy Hvidston, Bob Erlich and Dave Powers) stood out on defense, but it was the play of the versatile Paul Converse that cheered Tiger players and coaches after loss for the season of Co-Captain Larry Lotz. Lotz had a pin inserted in his ankle following an unusually severe sprain, and will not play again. Converse, who can play safety, linebacker and corner back, filled in at the latter spot capably for Lotz and also goes deep on punt returns with Jerry Peacock.

Causes Fumble and Recovers. After Earley had executed the perfect defensive play by batting a pitchout on the Tiger 11 into the air and then falling on the ball, Princeton gradually took charge of the action. Less than three minutes remained in the first quarter when Lockhart capped an eight play, 59-yard drive by circling right end for 17 yards on a keeper, the well-executed option sending him into the end zone untouched.

The next scoring drive began near midfield just as the quarter was drawing to a close, Lockhart climaxing it at 4:03 of the second period by throwing to Rohinson on the Lions' 2, the tight end breaking a tackle to cross the goal line. Neither team threatened thereafter and Princeton's 14-0 lead at the half was its greatest since it upset Harvard at Cambridge two years ago.

The Orange and Black managed only one more TD in the third period but had possession of the ball for almost 13½ minutes of the 15-minute session. Isom's burst around right end from a yard out ended a 47-yard drive and raised the Tigers' margin to 21-0.

Columbia quarterback Cal Moffie was charged with a fumble on the first play of the final period when he dropped back to pass and the Tigers' third recovery of the day on the losers' 5 was followed four plays later by their last touchdown. Sophomore quarterback Ken Barrett began his varsity career with this one on a keeper from a yard out.

Coach Bob Casciola substituted freely during the final quarter and Columbia drove 53 yards for its touchdown on a 25-yard pass play deep in the Tiger end zone. The victory was Princeton's fourth in a row over the Lions, who have not met with success in Palmer Stadium for the past 32 years.

Now the Tigers have finally won one, but their record is quite likely to dip to 1-4 before they get back into Ivy action. There is, of course, always the chance of an upset Saturday but Colgate's offensive power is extreme, and the Columbia victory cannot wholly erase memories of a Princeton attack that has often been far from impressive this fall.

The Ivy League, is, however, markedly off balance, with Dartmouth now the odds-on favorite and both Harvard and Yale below anticipated ability. Steady progress by Princeton would appear to give the Tigers a good chance against all four of their remaining opponents (Harvard and Penn next on the road, Yale and Cornell closing out the season here.)

To win any of these games, Princeton will almost certainly have to double its ability to move the ball through the air. In four games to date, the Tigers have averaged a scant 55 yards.

Ivy League Forecast

Colgate over Princeton. Raiders solid everywhere

Brown over Cornell. Red defense porous

Yale over Columbia. Lions have quarterback trouble

Penn over Lafayette. On better running attack

PHS Has Tough Foe in Hightstown Here Saturday
After Escaping from Hun with Slim 6-0 Decision

"This is embarrassing."

"Don't worry. We'll pay for it."

This dialogue between two Princeton High School players standing on the sidelines came in the fourth period in last week's game with Hun School, just after the Little Tigers had been forced to punt again to the fired-up Hun squad, while trying to protect a slim 6-0 lead.

They were right. Although Princeton High managed to prevail, 6-0, it had been embarrassed by the 23-member Hun team. It committed costly errors and penalties. Aside from the nine-play, 64-yard drive it mounted in the second period, culminated by Barry Turner's five-yard sweep around end, the Blue and White offense sputtered.

Worse, it was unimaginative. Pleas for at least one flea-flicker from the sideline went unheeded.

The individual who will make the Little Tigers "pay" is coach Jim Beachell. No one works harder in preparing his team, but Beachell was quick to admit after the Hun game that his team isn't ready yet to play Hightstown.

This is when they start counting. The 11 a.m. meeting here with the Rams will be Princeton's first home game of the season and its first Colonial Valley Conference contest. "We'll be ready," said Beachell, who looks for a very tough game. PHS is the defending CVC co-champion.

Similar Surroundings. The similarity between this year's and last year's clash with Hightstown is striking.

Last year, Hightstown, one of the pre-season favorites in the League, won its first three games. Its third victory was a convincing 30-0 shutout of St. Anthony's, in which the Rams had rushed for 287 yards and picked up 18 first downs, in sharp contrast to 33 and 4 for the losers. PHS had entered the game with a 1-2 mark, winning its first the previous week when it stopped Hun in the rain and mud, 6-0.

This fall, Hightstown is again a favorite to capture the league crown in its second year of existence. Again, it has won its first three. In its last start, St. Anthony was the victim again, 40-6.

This time the Rams were even more devastating, rushing for 431 yards, a school record. They led in first downs, 23 to 6, and the total Ram yardage of 550 was nine short of another school record.

The Rams are big. Their offense is led by Jeff Catelli, who rushed for 137 yards against St. Anthony, and Mark Clements, both veterans. Clements accounted for two TDs against the Iron Mikes and connected with quarterback Steve Lajoie for a 73-yard pass that set up the Rams' final TD.

But statistics are only so many figures, as the Little Tigers proved last year when PHS stunned Hightstown, 7-0, on a 34-yard quick opener by Daryl Grisham. PHS went on to win five of its next six.

This year...? Well, PHS beat Hun again 6-0 but Grisham hasn't broken one yet; in fact the speedster saw limited action against Hun, sidelined with a bruised elbow. Except for Bobby Campbell's TD run against Ewing, the Little Tiger backs have been held in check. The passing by first-year quarterback Tommy Seiler, while improving, hasn't been a factor.

The PHS defense is solid. "Super" was the way Beachell described it in the Hun game, and the pass defense is second to none. The question: how long can it hold up if it has to stay on the field as long as it did against Hun.

From any angle, Saturday's game with Hightstown is Princeton's biggest of the season.

"We knew it would be a tough game. We were fighting for the honor of Princeton. They played well, this is a real rival game.

"I'm sure they're just as disappointed as we would have been," continued Beachell, after the Hun game. "They played a good game, much better than we expected."

In winning its second 6-0 victory in a row over Hun, PHS preserved its record of never allowing a Hun score in the four meetings between the two. The first were 52-0 and 34-0, "but I kind of think that's about to change," said Beachell quickly.

Hun Had Chances. Hun had its chances, the last coming with 2:48 left to play when Kiernan Esposito fumbled a Hun punt and Jim Dean recovered on the PHS 33. "We had 'em; we just couldn't get the ball in," agreed Hun coach Dave Leete.

Hun advanced to the 17, where it had a first down following a pass from E.T. Roach to Tom West, Hun's 6-5 senior end. But a personal foul was called on West on the next play after he and a PHS defender had become entangled on the sidelines.

"It was a bad call," insisted Hun assistant coach Bill McQuade. "It took us right out of the ball game." Hun's final gasp came with 1:11 left and a fourth-and-13 from the 20. Roach hit West again but the pass was three yards short and a relieved PHS ran out the clock.

Fumbles by fullback Keith Wadsworth and Seiler in the first period, both covered by Hun, kept PHS untracked in the first period. Midway in the second, Hun needing six inches on a fourth down on its own 37, decided to go for it, but tackle Bob Cronin was whistled for encroachment. Hun, as a result, was forced to punt.

PHS took over on the 36. Wadsworth got a first down, Princeton's second of the game. Turner ran for another. Campbell carried on a reverse for a first down on the 15, and an encroachment call against Hun moved the ball to the 10.

A clip pushed the Little Tigers back but two plays later, Seiler passed to Turner and on the next play Turner circled left end for the score. Seiler's PAT kick was wide.

For PHS, the play of its defensive secondary of Dave Miller, Esposito, Tony Intartaglia, Turner and Campbell was outstanding. "I've got two all-conference people in Miller and Turner," said Beachell, who added that the hard-hitting Miller was an outstanding college prospect. Time and again, the PHS defense bumped and stymied West. It was a long afternoon for the Hun end.

More fine play came from linebackers Chris Cahill, singled out by Beachell, and Pete Gorman and Chris McDonald. Beachell also cited his three nose guards which he alternated on defense, Mike King, Dean Boyer and John Forrey.

"The defense played well but I didn't plan to have them play so much," said Beachell.

PDS NOW 7-0

In Soccer. "It wasn't a very good week for us," commented Princeton Day soccer coach Tom DeVito. "The practices didn't go that well, and we did not play well in either game."

So how did the Panthers do last week? They won their sixth and seventh consecutive games this season, both by shutouts, 3-0, over Hun last Wednesday, and 1-0 over Gill St. Bernards on Friday. It's the mark of a good team that it can have an off week, and still win both times in steps on the field.

But an "off week" cannot be allowed to continue, especially with dreams of an undefeated season still alive. The possibility of an upset is very real, where one goal often makes the difference.

Saturday against Gill-St. Bernards, one goal was all that saved the Panthers from a blemish on their spotless record. Using its narrow field to aid its game plan, the home team was clearly playing for a tie. It kept eight men back on defense, leaving just three players to carry the attack, hoping for a possible break away.

The result was just three shots on goal by the losers, to 23 for the Blue and White, But only one of those 23 managed to find the mark. A first period shot by Mike Walters, his 13th of the season, proved to be the winner.

DeVito commented. "We did not use our wings to open up the middle more." Last Wednesday, in a very physical contest, PDS scored five goals in all against Hun, but had two called back. Aware of Walters' abilities, the Red and Black assigned Ken Zeitler to shadow his every move, and he did an effective job.

The first half was scoreless, but in the third PDS broke the ice with a penalty shot by Ralph Ross, after Zeitler had been called for elbowing Walters. The Panthers added to insurance markers, both beginning with fine corner kicks by Joe Lapsley. Jono Rush put in the first and co-captain Andy Sanford headed in the second, for his first score of the season.

John Rodgers was in the goal for both contests. This Wednesday PDS will meet Pingry at home and Saturday Peddie away.

3 MAKE HOLES-IN-ONE

And Are Eligible for Prizes. Three Princeton area residents are eligible to win $1,000 and a free trip to Scotland as a result of scoring holes-in-one.

They are: Alan Frank and Sheila Leyton of Princeton, both of whom recorded aces at Springdale, and Jack Partillo of 21 Exeter Road, East Windsor, who made his at the Peddie School Golf Club.

Their aces qualified them for the Rusty Nail Hole-In-One Sweepstakes sponsored by the Drambuie Company of Edinburgh, Scotland. The winner of the 17th annual competition will be announced early next year.

PDS TIES PENNINGTON

Peddie Is Next. Some coaches will always tell you "a tie is like kissing your sister," but Princeton Day coach Rob Hoffman was quite satisfied to walk off the field Saturday morning after watching his team battle to a scoreless deadlock against Pennington.

PP&K WINNERS: Winners of the annual Punt, Pass & Kick competition Saturday at Community Park and sponsored by Nassau Conover Motor Company and the National Football League are Michael Hunningheke, 8; Keith Colovita, 9; Marcus Bleecker, 10; Keith McKellar, 11; Kyle Stephens, 12; and David Barclay, 13. They will advence to the PP&K zone competition Saturday in Mount Holly. Eighty youngsters, the largest turnout ever, entered the competition here.

Going into the contest with three of his starters on the sidelines, Hoffman then saw his offensive game plan fall apart when the visitors came up with an unexpected defeosive alignment.

The result saw the Red Raider offense control the ball for the vast majority of the 48-minute contest, but in the end they had nothing on the scoreboard to show for it. In recording its second consecutive shutout, the Panther defense was equal to the occasion.

Naturally, a victory would have been nice, hut the tie does not hurt PDS's chances of winning the New Jersey Prep League title. An undefeated Wardlaw team is still the one to beat, and the one the Blue and White will have to beat a week from this Saturday. The victor in that game will be the champion.

In between, PDS will journey to Hightstown next Saturday for a non-league "tune-up" contest with Peddie. It's a "tune-up", because Hoffman is more concerned with preparing for the Wardlaw battle, not because Peddie is any easy mark.

At 1-2 its record is not impressive, but as a Class A school, Peddie is "a step ahead of us" in Hoffman's words. Still in all, the game will hopefully give Hoffman a chance to rejeovenate the Panthers' rather weak offense.

Olsson Contained. Football coaches utilize game films, reports from friends at other schools and their own scouting to get the best estimate of what the next opponent is likely to do. So, from various sources, Hoffman felt fairly sure Pennington would be in a 4-4 defense, aod built his game plan accordingly.

When Pennington came up with a 7-2, designed to contain Rob Olsson, PDS had to do some hasty improvising. That was made more complicated, because Don Gips, normally a guard, was replacing Chris Price at halfback. Price saw only limited duty as a wide receiver. Two-way player Tim Dill and cornerback Rancy Shelton also were out with injories. All three are expected to play this Saturday.

Olsson was held to about 37 yards rushing, half his usual total, as the PDS offense stalled out. Its one vague threat came just before the half, when it managed to get down around the Pennington 35. An intereception of a Neil Monroe option pass ended that drive.

Pennington, meanwhile, gained a lot of yardage between the 20-yard lines, but never got much closer. Key penalties on several occasions hurt the Red Raiders. "They beat themselves," was Hoffman's assessment.

Junior Team Does Well. The future looks bright for Princeton Day in football; its junior team, composed of eighth and ninth graders tied Lawrenceville, 12-12, on Friday. Coach Bruce Delventhal has 30 boys out for the team, and managed to get every one into the game. Standouts include Mike Leahy at quarterback and Scott Egner at guard.

A star performer for the Panthers in the past, running back Billy Martin had a great day Saturday. He was the leading ground gainer with 83 yards for Rutgers, as it rolled over Connecticut, 42-6.

PHS VS. NOTRE DAME

In Soccer. The final test comes Thursday. Just how good the current Princeton High School soccer team is and whether it can expect to nail down its first Colonial Valley Conference title will be answered to a large degree when PHS meets Notre Dame.

The contest will be played at the Little Tigers' home field next to tbe Valley Road School building, starting at 3:45. On Monday, PHS will travel to Pennington for a return match witb the up-and-down Bulldogs from Hopewell Valley Central High School.

Last week, Coacb Ed Beacham's streaking PHS squad made it six in a row with a 7-1 triumph over the Marie Katzenbach School for the Deaf, its easiest win of the season.

Sophomore Ron Celestine, the all-Conference candidate from Haiti, scored his ninth and teoth goals of the season. Ahead 3-1 at the half, the Little Tigers broke the game open with three more goals in the third period.

Pierre Muri, Joel Schulman, John Miller and Pat Cautier also scored, while goalie Sandy Howell had 14 saves. The losers' only tally came in the first period. For PHS, which was 4-12-1 last year, the victory was its sixth straight after two opening losses.

PHS GIRLS TENNIS 6-0

But Top Player is Sidelined. The Princeton High School girls tennis team defeated Hopewell Valley, 5-0, Friday to remain undefeated, but the win was tempered by a report from coach Bill Humes that the team's number one singles player, Karen Clark, has been sidelined for the rest of the season with a condition that has affected her ability to play.

Clark has been described by Humes repeatedly as the best singles player in Mercer County. She is a senior. "Losing her is like the Yankees losing Reggie Jackson," he said.

For most teams, such a loss would be serious but the Little Tigers are deep with experienced players. "It means everyone will move up a notch; it allows me to play younger players and give them more experience," commented Humes. "It's nice," he added, "to have the extra kids to fill in the gaps."

Against Hopewell, Vicki Phillips "filled in nicely," for Clark said Humes, and won the number one singles, 6-1, 6-1. Diane Aronovic, number two, also triumphed, 6-1, 6-1, while Beth Ellis won, 6-2, 6-0.

PHS swept the doubles match without the loss of a set. Debbie Blair and Julie Heeg won, 6-0, 6-1, and Sarah and Lisa Merians, 6-0, 6-2. The win was Princeton's sixth without a loss. In its most recent match, PHS on Monday defeated Metuchen, 5-0.

RAISE $2,500 FOR TENNIS FUND. A fund-raising party held at Morven by the Youth Tennis Foundation was a success, as $2,500 was collected for the YTF's scholarship. Miles Dumont (left) and Wendy Hopper were co-chairmen.

ALLENTOWN IS SUNK

As Pirates Win, 32-0. Scoring in every period, the West Windsor football team buried winless Allentown Saturday, 32-0, for its second victory in three starts.

The Pirates, who will find the competition up a few notches when they oppose Notre Dame Saturday at 1:30 on the Irish's field, ran up 316 yards rushing while holding Allentown to 80.

Ron Dilatush, who scored twice on a pair of four-yard runs, was the Pirates' leading gainer with 104 yards. Speedster Chris Gillette had the longest scoring run of the day, a 25-yard gallop in the second period. He rushed for 84 yards.

One hundred ninety yards in penalties were levied against both teams in a rough first half, which saw WW leading, 13-0.

WINTER CLASSES SET

At Indoor Tennis Center. The first session of the Princeton Indoor Tennis Center's winter classes will begin October 24 and run through December 18. Instruction is offered for adults of all ability levels in morning and evening classes.

Although some classes have been filled there are still openings available. For details, call the Tennis office, 924-4343.

PARENTS DAY SATURDAY

At Hun. The Hun School - Blair football game will be part of Parents Day Saturday at Hun with the Red and Black still looking for its first victory of the season. Kickoff is at 2.

Hun coach Dave Leete got a look at Blair last week and what he saw didn't give him reason for optimism. In a game with Newark Academy, to which Hun lost in its opener, Leete left in the final period with Blair enjoying a 40-point lead.

Like Hun, Blair has a thin squad, 21 players to Hun's 23. "It'll be a tough game," said Leete, "but if we can generate a little more offense, it should be interesting."

Hun has scored only once in three games this season, losing its last test to Princeton High, 6-0. A more detailed report of the latter appears elsewhere in this issue.

BLAIR, SOLEBURY NEXT

For Hun Booters. The Hun School soccer team broke a five - game losing streak last week when it gained a 2-2 tie with Perkiomen. Earlier in the week, coach Jack Huckel's squad had been blanked by rival Princeton Day School, 3-0.

Hun will try to get things going against Blair Academy, which it entertains this Wednesday at 3:30, and against Solebury, also at home on Friday afternoon. Its present record is 1-6-1.

TWO TIED FOR LEAD

In Women's Tennis League. After three weeks of play in the Princeton Recreation Departments women's fall tennis league, teams I and III are tied for first place with eight points each. Team I's seeded players, Captains Rosemary Flanagan and Joan Oberman, are also the top contestants for individual points with a total of six, winning every game so far.

In third place is team V with 7 points. Team V seeded players, Lynn Wolfe and Pat Cleaves are tied with Lillian Cohen and D. May Meyerhofer of team VI for second place individual honors.
